The river is still rising at Louisville at the rate of two-thirds of a foot an hour, and the crest of the flood is expected to reach here by to-morrow. It is believed by the Weather Bureau that a stage of forty feet will be reached before the waters begin to recede. Residents on the "Point" and Shippingport were removed to places of safety by the Fire Department yesterday. The situation up the Ohio river is improving as the waters are gradually receding.

The Harry Thaw trial will enter upon its ninth week to-morrow. District Attorney Jerome is expected to offer the last of his evidence during to-morrow's sessions, but the defense has secured subpoenas for a number of witnesses and the tenth week may be entered upon before the close of the celebrated case. Thaw is said to be in fine spirits and confident of a favorable outcome of his trial.

Efforts have been begun at Gallatin to force the Standard Oil Company from Tennessee, the Attorney General having filed suit to oust it. The allegations are that the company has entered into a conspiracy to control prices and drive out competition and the action is brought under a State law recently upheld by the Supreme Court of Tennessee.

Gov. Hanly signed the Indiana Appropriation Bill, in which remained the provision setting aside money for the Jamestown Exposition, but it is believed that some arrangement has been made by which the payment will be avoided. The Governor vetoed several bills, but signed the one allowing drugists to sell whisky.

Helicon Hall, the home of the Upton Sinclair co-operative colony, was burned at Englewood, N. J., and one man was killed jumping from the windows. Eight persons, including two well-known women writers, were seriously injured, also by jumping.

The Nashville City Council stands pat on its attitude regarding the Tennessee House and reaffirmed its declaration for which the members have been declared in contempt. Habeas corpus proceedings will be begun in case the Councilmen are sent to jail.

Gov. Deneen, of Illinois, in an interview yesterday at Washington declared emphatically that his State would have a candidate for the Republican nomination for President in the person of Speaker Cannon, of the House of Representatives.

Mrs. Clara Carr, wife of the Kentucky killed in a duel with penknives, was found dead in her home when the receding waters of the Allegheny allowed searchers to enter. The woman had struggled herself with strips from the bedding.

Senator Heyburn, of Idaho, in discussing the stock market situation said the prosperity of the country was not affected by what he termed "Wall street pyrotechnics," and added that it was nothing but a private game of poker.

Burley tobacco growers of Fayette county will hold a monster barbecue at Lexington on April 25, when it is expected that fully 25,000 visitors will be present. The purpose is to strengthen the organization of the growers.

Among the President's callers yesterday were the Governor and Attorney General of Illinois and James Speyer, of New York. It is thought that the railroad situation was the subject of discussion.

Through the efforts of Senator Hemmaway, for the first time, a warship flying the colors of the United States will sail up the Ohio river to Evansville.

WANT FUNDS TO PRESERVE FRANCIS KEY MANSION.

Washington, March 16.—With the view of the purchase of the Francis Scott Key mansion in this city, the home of the author of "The Star Spangled Banner," the Francis Scott Key Memorial Association, to-day issued an appeal for funds. The amount needed for the purchase is $25,000. It is stated that the home of the author of the national anthem is in a sad state of neglect and covered with various signs and advertisements. Applications for membership or contributions may be sent to any member of the association or to the treasurer, W. D. Hoover, of the National Savings and Trust Company.

STANLEY WILL SPEAK ON "APPOMATOX DAY."

Henderson, Ky., March 16.—[Special.]—Hon. A. O. Stanley, Congressman of the Second district of Kentucky, has accepted an invitation to address the Hamilton Club in Chicago on the evening of April 9 at its banquet, which will be known as "Appomatox day."

Last Concert of Apollo Club.
The concert of the Apollo Club is to be given on Thursday night, April 4, at the Woman's Club. The soloist is Mrs. Helen de Mose, one of the most popular sopranos of this country. She has sung in hundreds of festivals in all the principal cities and is recognized as an artist of the first rank. All the Apollo concert have been successful and it is hoped that this will also excel the others.PRESIDENT HAS MANY CALLERS*Informal Talks Over the Railroad Situation.*Illinois Governor Discusses "Certain Questions."*Denied That President Will Issue Statement.*TO CONFER WITH MELLER.

Washington, March 16.—Questions affecting the railroad situation occupied more or less of the attention of President Roosevelt to-day. During the morning there were informal talks with some of his callers on the subject. A dispatch came from President Mellen, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, asking when it would be convenient for the President to see him, and in the afternoon there was a visit from Gov. Deneen and Attorney General Stead, of Illinois.

A semi-official denial was made that the Governor and the Attorney General talked either finance or railroads. From statements, however, which have come from authoritative quarters preceding the Governor's visit, the inference is drawn that there was some reference during the talk with the President to the Chicago and Alton deal, which figured prominently in the recent Harriman investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The President is known to be availing himself of every opportunity to become acquainted generally with the railroad situation and specifically as it exists in certain directions, and the impression is general that this question was touched on to some extent at least in the conference with Gov. Deneen. The latter would make no statement on the subject.

No Statement From President.

A rumor gained currency during the morning that the President intended to issue a statement defining in positive language his attitude on the relations of the Government to the railroads. An impression to this effect apparently got abroad from the fact that the president had read to some of his callers extracts from speeches he had made and letters he had written bearing on some features of the railroad question. All reports of this character, however, proved to be groundless and later it was ascertained on the best authority that the President would not issue such a statement to-day nor did he have any such idea in contemplation.

One of the President's early callers to-day was James Speyer, of New York, the head of the firm of Speyer & Co. To many his call looked significant, as it closely followed on that of Wednesday. It was impossible to ascertain either from the White House or from Speyer the purpose of the latter's visit.

Discuss Certain Questions.

Gov. Deneen and Attorney General Stead were with the President for fully an hour. The Governor was at the White House at the President's request to discuss "certain questions," the nature of which he declined to disclose. After the conference the Governor left on an afternoon train for Chicago. Neither the Governor nor Mr. Stead would make any statement regarding their interview with the President, the Governor only admitting that nothing had been agreed upon that would require immediate action. Gov. Deneen gave the newspaper men who saw him to understand that he expected the President to make a statement about the interview, but nothing in that form was given out at the White House. It was explained there that the arrangements with the Governor for his visit to Washington had been made before the recent flurry in Wall street.

To See Mellen Tuesday.

Tuesday next the President is to have a conference with President Mellen, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. The interview is to be had at Mr. Mellen's initiative. Mr. Mellen is one of the railroad presidents whom J. P. Morgan asked Mr. Roosevelt to confer with as to "what steps might be taken to allay the public anxiety as to the relations between the railroads and the Government." As the association of the White House, Mr. Mellen is the only one of the presidents who has asked for an interview.

AGAIN FORCED FROM HOMESResidents of Point and Shippingport Move Out.*Flood At Louisville To Reach Forty Feet.*Crest Due To-morrow Night; Will Fall Rapidly.*PROSPECT LINE IS STOPPED.

Flood water a foot and a half or two feet under the highest point of last January is in store for Louisville by Monday night. The river rose at this point yesterday at the rate of a tenth of an inch an hour, and will continue to rise at that rate until to-morrow night, when the crest will have reached Louisville. It will fall rapidly. The gauge at Louisville showed 32.2 feet at 7 o'clock last night with 39 feet at Cincinnati. It has begun to fall at Pittsburg, but the river is still from six to eight feet above the danger line from Chattanooga to Madison. It is expected that the water will begin to recede from Portsmouth, O., up, by this morning.

BRAIN STORM CERTAIN WHEN HE FINISHESPOOR SALOONKEEPER'S HEAD WOULD WHIRL.*WHEN HE TRIES TO FIND PURITY OF BEER.*UNDER DEPARTMENT RULES.

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—The Agricultural Department today issued a bulletin on pure beer and prescribing the ideal method of testing the beverage. The bulletin has been awaited with interest by the American public ever since it became known that experiments were in progress, and it is expected that the department of the pamphlet will be exhausted in a few days.

Every saloonkeeper in Louisville should have a copy of the bulletin, for with it in his hands, no brewer can get the better of him. The only things necessary in making the simple test are a bottle of the beverage, a copy of Baume's tables, one Zeiss immersion refractometer, a platinum dish, one water oven, one copy beer wort tables, one package neutral litmus paper, a small quantity of phenolphthalein, a bottle of hydrochloric acid, one polariscope, a beaker, solution of sodium acetate, one burette, one centrifuge, one platinum crucible, a glass plate, a cake of carnauba wax, a pointed piece of ivory and a sheet of pure rubber.

TRAGEDY DISCLOSEDBY RECEDING OF MUDDY FLOOD AT PITTSBURG.*Wife of Kentuckian Killed in Duel With Knives Found a Suicide.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 16.—[Special.]—When the flood which held Allegheny in its embrace for several days receded today, the body of Mrs. Clara Carr, aged thirty-five, wife of Frank Carr, who was killed by "Peggy" Murphy, in a duel with knives a few days ago, was found in her home in Post Lane. Beside her dead body lay a pet spaniel, almost dead from starvation.

After the murder of Carr, whose home is in Fulton, Ky., his wife became very melancholy. She refused to leave her home on Wednesday evening, when the water had reached half way to the second floor. Since that time no person was near the house until to-day when she was found. The woman had strangled herself to death with strips from the bedding.

FOLK TO CALL A SPECIAL SESSION.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 16.—Gov. Folk announced to-day that he would call a special session of the Legislature to convene at Jefferson City April 2 for the consideration of measures for the regulation of public utilities, corporations and dramsops.

VETOES THREE BILLS PASSED BY LEGISLATURE.

Appropriation Measure Signed and Becomes Law—Trouble Over Exposition Fund.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 16.—[Special.]—Gov. Hanly made a clean-up of legislative bills to-day, signing the general appropriation bill and the bill which allows druggists to sell liquor in quart quantities on a physician's prescription or on the sworn statement of the purchaser that it is to be used for medicinal purposes. The Governor was bitterly opposed to the appropriation of $25,000 to the Jamestown Exposition in the General Appropriation Bill, and it is generally believed that some method has been reached by which the appropriation will be non-effective. Auditor of State Billheimer says that such an appropriation of money is clearly illegal and that he would not issue a warrant on the treasury for the amount, but the State appropriated money for the World's Fair at Chicago, and for other similar exhibitions, and no question was ever raised of the right of the Legislature to do so. The Governor vetoed three bills before completing the work of the day. One was the Retaliatory and Reciprocal Life Insurance Bill, a measure that was designed to hand out to the insurance companies of other States the same treatment that they should give to Indiana companies. Under the bill Indiana could have excluded any company from doing business in this State, if for any reason it excluded an Indiana company. The bill providing for an increase of the salaries of Common Councilmen in this city from $300 to $900 was also vetoed, and the bill giving Sheriffs in and out fees—that is, enabling them to charge the county for admitting and discharging prisoners, also fell under the gubernatorial ax.

JUMP FROM WINDOWS

WHEN SINCLAIR CO-OPERATIVE COLONY HOME BURNS.

Well-Known Women Writers Seriously Injured and One Man Killed.

Englewood, N. J., March 16.—By the burning of Helicon Hall, the home of the Upton Sinclair Co-operative colony, to-day, one man, Lester Briggs, a carpenter, of Providence, R. I., was killed and eight of the colonists were injured in jumping from windows. Mrs. Grace McGowan Cooke, a well-known writer of short stories, is believed to have suffered fatal injuries and her sister, Miss Alice Fochtenberg, also a writer, and Miss Leonie Fochtenberg are badly injured. The financial loss is estimated at $35,000. Fifty-five members of the colony, and workers employed by them, occupied the building, which was a three-story structure located on a hilltop and formerly used as a school for the deaf. An explosion of gas which occurred on the main floor started the fire about dawn to-day. The colonists, including the women and children, jumped from the windows. The men, who were the first to go, attempted to catch the women and children in blankets used as fire nets, but Mrs. Cooke, Miss McGowan and some of the others were badly injured by striking against a coping in their fall. A number of the colonists escaped by ropes or by jumping only a short distance from the roof of the house. Those most seriously injured were taken to Englewood Hospital. The building was totally destroyed.

AGAIN FORCED FROM HOMES

Steamer Helen Gould, running between Louisville and Carrollton, has also been put out of commission because of the high water.

Seeking Higher Levels.

The high water has already caused much damage along the river between First and Twelfth streets and residents on Third and Fourth avenues, half way between the river front and Main street, have moved to the second floors of their buildings and all business on those streets is practically suspended. The Kentucky and Indiana Bridge Company has been forced to abandon its passenger service at Seventh street and is now using the union depot entrances and further up and down the river the water is fast creeping into the business houses located along the river edge.

The engine and boiler room of the Grainger Iron Works, at the foot of Tenth street, is under water and business will likely be suspended there until the middle of the week. The Government station, occupied by Capt. J. W. Pell at the foot of Ninth street, is almost inundated and should the present rise continue through to-day and to-night the house will be completely under water. Capt. Pell abandoned his office Friday morning and took temporary quarters in the office of the Monongahela Coal and Coke Company at the foot of Second street, and a private Government detective remained on duty at Capt. Pell's office until last night when he was forced to vacate.

"Pointers" Moving Out.

That the people living on the "Point" do not care for a repetition of the want and distress, resulting from the flood in January, is evident from the fact that yesterday everybody was busy removing their household effects and themselves to higher and dryer quarters. From early in the morning, when they were sent an official flood warning, and Chief Tyson detailed a squad of firemen to this part of the city to induce the people to move, until late in the afternoon, the "Point" was a scene of great activity. Vans carried away furniture for some of the residents, small express wagons served the purpose for others, and those who were too poor to hire either vans or express wagons and were too impatient to get away from the danger to wait until the firemen could assist them, moved their few articles in wheelbarrows and baby-buggies.

Some Feet From Cut-Off.

And all the time the ruin is creeping steadily upward. The river has several feet to climb before it flows over the "cut-off," but at the present rate of rise it probably will begin to flow over this mound by to-morrow. After it once reaches the top of the road and begins to creep over, the water with a big rush, will pour into the valley on the east side of the "cut-off," sweeping on its way many residences that have just been placed in a state of repair since the flood two months ago. Many of the houses have not been reoccupied since the last flood, but there are others that have and in case the water does not carry themselves and their household articles away in quick time much loss will probably result from the prospective deluge.

There are a few residents who display the characteristic "Point" grit and propose to stick it out with the waters till the last. Yesterday afternoon an old riverman, living on Fulton street, was driving pegs into the ground beside a new fence and was attaching wire from the peg to the posts of the fence. When he was asked his purpose in doing this he replied:

Anchoring New Fence.

"I just built this fence and I do not made temporary quarter at the houses. From evidence found by the firemen at the fire it seems that the fire was started by the overturning of a lamp, believed to have been used by the refugees. The loss on the houses is covered partly by insurance.

DESERT SHIPPINGPORT.

One Hundred Families Take Refuge At Higher Points.

A hundred families moved from their homes along the river front in Shippingport and Portland yesterday. Most of them had only recently returned to their own homes after leaving them at the time of the January flood. Yesterday they again deserted their homes for higher ground after warning given them by the city that the Ohio river is again on a rampage and that a forty-foot stage is expected here by Monday night. Some few people had moved Friday and already many houses are completely surrounded by water.

Yesterday the rise of the river was very noticeable in both Shippingport and Portland. During the day the water reached Marine street in Shippingport and Missouri avenue down in Portland. All houses between those streets and the river have already been deserted and during yesterday many houses as yet far out of danger of the flood were deserted, their occupants taking advantage of their experience during the flood of a few weeks ago.

Police Give Warning.

Yesterday morning a squad of police was sent all through the downtown river district and families all along the river front were notified that they would have to leave their homes for higher ground. People were both notified of the approaching flood and were told that they would have to move immediately.

From engine house No. 13 three wagons manned with firemen were sent out to assist the people along the water front in moving. Rooms were found here and there and wagons loaded with household effects were seen going in every direction.

Reluctant To Leave.

Many people living in the districts that will be entirely under water in case the flood is as great proportions as is expected were in some cases reluctant about picking up a few necessary pieces of furniture and leaving their homes, but fearing that another such flood as that in January might come there was but little trouble experienced in persuading the inhabitants of both Shippingport and Portland to find places of safety to which they might go. So far no place has been provided by the city where furniture and household goods can be stored.

In Shippingport the Salvation Army furnished two wagons which were kept busy all day long in moving families from low districts.

CAPT. FOWLER AT WORK.

Following a tour of inspection to the "Point" yesterday morning Maj. Tyson, chief of the Fire Department, dispatched Capt. Louis Fowler, assistant chief of the First district, to the scene with instructions to see that every family on the Point moved to a place of safety before the flood crest over the "cut-off" and washed them away as it did last January.

Acting on the instructions from Chief Tyson, Capt. Fowler with eight wagons and fourteen men worked all of yesterday and long into the night moving the residents to a place of safety. Capt. Fowler said late last night that he and his men had devoted their time to the families residing on the "Point," between Cable and Hancock streets, and had succeeded in getting most of them moved, and those not yet out of danger will be looked after to-day. Capt. Fowler said that a number deputed at having to move again on the belief that the flood would not reach them a second time, but acting under orders from Chief Tyson no favoritism was shown by Capt. Fowler and his men, and the men as their turn came. Chief Tyson said late last night that it was the purpose of the Mayor to see that every possible destruction of property such as was experienced in January was removed, and to that end he had issued orders to Capt. Fowler to see that every possible assistance was given to get the residents along the "point" to a place of safety.

May Not Cross Cut-Off.

Capt. Fowler expressed the belief

Two frame cottages, valued at $500 each and owned by Mrs. Charles Gay, were destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. The houses were on the "Point" near the Big Four bridge and were unoccupied. Owing to this fact it is believed that the fire was started accidentally by flood refugees, who

MRS. CORA B. MILLER MAKES A FORTUNE

Started a Few Years Ago With No Capital, and Now Employs Nearly One Hundred Clerks and Stenographers.

Until a few years ago Mrs. Cora B. Miller lived in a manner similar to that of thousands of other very poor women of the average small town and village. She now resides in a new two-story brown-stone residence, and is considered one of the most successful business women in America.

Several years ago Mrs. Miller learned of a mild and simple preparation that cured herself and several friends of female weakness and piles. She was beset by many women needing treatment, and she decided to furnish it to those who might call for it. She started with only a few dollars' capital, and the remedy, possessing true and wonderful merit, produced a cure where other remedies failed, the demand grew rapidly. She was several times compelled to seek larger quarters. She now occupies one of the city's largest office buildings, which she owns and almost one hundred clerks and stenographers are required to assist in this great business.

More than a million women have used Mrs. Miller's remedy, and no matter what your ailment, if it is a female disease in your own locality who can and will tell you of the cure. The remedy is a simple and safe one, and it is a fact that Mrs. Miller's business is very extensive, she is always willing to give aid and advice to every suffering woman who writes to her. She is a generous, good woman, and has decided to give away to women who have never used the remedy $10.00 worth absolutely FREE.

Every woman suffering with pain in the head, back and down the spine, nervousness, creeping sensations, the spinal fluid, or any of the above, or any other ailment, if it is a female disease, should at once get right down and write your name and address to Mrs. B. Miller, Box 491, Kokomo, Ind., and a 50-cent box of her marvelous medicine, also her valuable book, which every woman should have.

Remember, this offer will not last long, and thousands of women who are suffering will take advantage of this generous means of getting cured. So you are urged to get your name in right away, but send your name and address to Mrs. Miller, Box 491, Kokomo, Ind., and the $10.00 worth is all gone.

Last night that the river would not reach a stage sufficient to cause it to go over the "cut-off" during the present flood.

The Prospect interurban line was practically shut out of commission by the flood yesterday afternoon, and it was impossible for the cars on this line to run east of Lettice avenue. The tracks for several squares east of Lettice avenue were several inches under water, and no cars were run east of Lettice avenue after 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The flooding of the tracks on the Prospect line work was a great hardship on the patrons of the line as many of them have no other means of transportation. The officials when boarding the cars for their homes at the interurban stations last night.

CAR LINES INTERRUPTED.

Leaves Break At Portsmouth and Others Expected To Go.

Cincinnati, March 16.—With the Ohio river rising here at the rate of about one-tenth of a foot an hour, and the crest of the flood not yet passed, it is practically certain that a stage of 82 feet will be reached, if not exceeded. Weather Forecast Official Bessler expressed doubt late to-day that the river would go quite to the January mark of 82.2, as he predicted yesterday, but said that the river would continue to rise to-night and to-morrow, and by Monday a turn will come. The water has crept a few feet since the river broke, and the lower parts of this city, but no extensive damage has been reported.

Up the river the situation is more serious. This is especially true at Marietta and Portsmouth, where the crest of the flood is passing. At Portsmouth, two levees broke, letting the water encroach on territory not heretofore flooded. Two other levees have been weakened by the water seeping through, and will also go. Only one is considered safe—that in the east end of the city. The breaking of these levees has compelled hundreds of people to vacate their homes and paralyzed manufacturing concerns.

The river at 9 o'clock is 93.3 feet, rising one-tenth of a foot an hour.

NORMAL TREND

About Resumed In Pittsburgh and Cleaning Up Is In Progress.

Pittsburgh, March 16.—After three days of business stagnation caused by a remarkably rapid rise in the Monongahela, Allegheny and Ohio rivers, which inundated more than ten square miles of this city, conditions have about assumed their normal trend. With the exception of lowlands below the city the water has subsided to its natural course.

The task of cleaning up the streets in the downtown district was completed to-night. Large forces of men are clearing the interiors of buildings and repairing them for resumption of business Monday morning.

Several mills and manufacturing establishments began operations to-night. Within two or three days it is thought the mills will have resumed.

Coal shipments will be made to-morrow, when several big tows of coal will start South. There was about ten million bushels of coal in the harbor during the flood, but no losses are reported.

OUT TOWN IN TWO.

People At Enterprise Taking Gloomy Outlook of Situation.

Rockport, Ind., March 16.—At Enterprise, a few miles below here, the Ohio river cut this town in two. Communication is practically shut off from the outside world, and many of the houses are doomed. What was left by the heavy wrought-in the January flood is in danger of being swept away, and the people of the little town are taking a gloomy outlook of the situation. The town was almost swept away during the storm and flood of two months ago, and now it is in the same predicament. The buildings in the town are reported to be crumbling away.

Pump Crews Quit.

Portsmouth, O., March 16.—The stage at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon was 59 feet 7 1/4 inches and still rising at the rate of 1 1/4 inches per hour. The Selcote and backwater from the Ohio has begun to break through the North End levee and the crew in charge of the flood pumps abandoned their post. The East End levee is the only one now considered safe. The flood has forced hundreds of families to move and Chillicothe, the principal business street, is submerged for a distance of almost two squares.

Crest Reaches Maysville.

Maysville, Ky., March 16.—[Special.]—The crest of the Pittsburgh rise passed this city to-night, and by midnight the river will be falling here. The gauge marks 57.2 at 8 o'clock, and rising slowly. The water is in the residences between Market and Limestone, on Front street, in the houses on Wall street and in about fifty in the Fifth and Sixth wards. Two more feet and the C. and O. railroad will have to stop.

Steadily Creeping Up.

Tell City, Ind., March 16.—[Special.]—The rapid rising of the river for the last few days has brought the Ohio out of its banks and another flood like in January is feared. The U. S. Harne Company, the largest plant here, was forced to close down. The water is steadily creeping up and a foot more rise will put the Southern railway out of commission, and Tell City will again be cut off from the outside world.

Service Resumed.

East Liverpool, O., March 16.—After being shut off from the world for two days on account of the flood, something like normal conditions were restored both here and at Wellville late to-day. The first mail train to enter the city during the flood came in this afternoon, and Tell City will again be cut off from the outside world.

CHARACTER WITNESSES CLOSE LIBEL CASE.

Arguments In Gaines Suit Will Be Heard Monday—Governor On Stand.

Lawrenceburg, Ky., March 16.—[Special.]—The evidence in the libel case of Noel Gaines against Editor W. P. Walton, which has been in progress in the Anderson Circuit Court here since Tuesday, was finished this afternoon. The instructions have been virtually agreed upon and the argument will begin Monday. John Ray will speak in behalf of the plaintiff and Guy H. Briggs and James Andrew Scott for the defense.

Several witnesses were put on the stand to-day to prove that Gaines' reputation for morals for the last three years was good. The defense introduced witnesses who stated that Gaines' reputation at present time for truth and veracity was bad.

Gov. Beekman and Percy Haly were called in rebuttal and testified that no such conversations as Gaines stated on the witness stand Friday morning.

CROWD APPROVES VERDICT FINING FACTORY BOSS.

Demonstration In Court When Judge Assesses W. F. Modes $50 For Assault.

Frankfort, Ky., March 16.—[Special.]—William F. Modes, superintendent of the Frankfort glass factory, was fined $50 and costs before County Judge Polgrove to-day on a charge of assault and breach of the peace. Modes struck Henry Denison, of Marion, Ind., a discharged employe, with a brick when he was charged that Denison was soliciting fellow employes to quit work. Denison was confined in the hospital several days. When the judgment was announced there was a popular demonstration.

Cures Drunkards

Mary's Miracle.

The day of working miracles, I'm sure is far from past. And now to show you what I mean. I'll tell you of the last. Great one that happened right to me. For I was drunk, I, you see. You know the life I used to lead—O God, a living death. A drunkard of the hopeless kind. For, scarce a sober breath had I over, I was down, and hope and pride were lost to me and nearly all beside.

One friend alone was left—my wife, God bless her ever. She saved me from a drunkard's grave. And whisky's wicked power. Just how she saved me you shall see—This is the way she told it me.

When hope was almost dead within Her faithful, constant breast, She read of Dr. Haines' Cure. Then without stay or rest, She sent for one trial sample free, And gave it unbeknown to me!

I drank of it at every meal—I ate it in my bread, While Mary watched me anxiously, But never a word she said: Until one day I stopped to think, That I had lost my love for drink!

When, quite unconscious I was cured, My Mary told me all. It seemed the very act of God. A miracle, indeed. I call it this because my wife And Haines' Cure had saved my life.

And now my little story's done, My every word is true. And what this treatment did for me, The same 'twill do for you: And wives and mothers all, Take heart of Mary's Miracle. Save those near and dear to you from a life of degradation, poverty and disgrace. You can do it by cutting out this coupon.

Free Treatment Coupon.

Fill in your name and address on blank line below. Then cut out this coupon and mail it to Dr. J. W. Haines, 3623 Green Volz, Cincinnati, Ohio. You will receive in return enough of the remedy to prove to you that it will cure drunkenness in any form. You can see it in tea, coffee or food. The drunkard will stop drinking without knowing why. You will also get books and testimonials to prove how hundreds have been saved.

A BOLD STEP.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has absolutely and completely removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them Remedies of Known Composition.

They are now in a class all by themselves—being absolutely and in every sense Non-secret.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

So many false formulas and malicious statements concerning his medicines have been published through the connivance of jealous, envious and disgruntled doctors, that Dr. Pierce determined to completely disarm his assailants by a full and frank statement of their exact composition, verifying the same under conditions completely correct. This he has done and to the complete discomfiture of those who had assailed his good name as well as the well-earned reputation of his world-famous medicines.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this booklet it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, overworked, "run-down" men and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

MR. ATKINSON IS PRESIDENT

Chosen Head of Kentucky Jamestown Exposition.

Col. Johnston Retires Because of Multitudinous Duties.

Will Continue As Member of State Board.

KENTUCKY DAY ON JULY 6.

John B. Atkinson, of Burlington, was yesterday elected president of the Kentucky Jamestown Exposition Commission, vice Col. J. Stoddard Johnston, of Louisville, who tendered his resignation as the chief officer of the board.

Col. Johnston requested his associates to relieve him of the duties of president on account of the demands on his time made by his position as associate editor of the Courier-Journal. He felt that the constantly increasing work as president of the organization could not be carried out as he wished along with his private duties, and therefore asked to be relieved.

The resignation of Col. Johnston was accepted by his associates under protest. It was the unanimous opinion of the members of the board that he should continue as president of the organization.

A CHICKERING

The Piano for a Lifetime.

The greatest marvel of the Chickering Piano is its wonderful quality of endurance. The instrument in Liszt's home at Weimar, which was first used by the master in 1867, retains to-day the same superb tone and action that so endeared it to the great composer.

THE CHICKERING

Is the Piano for a lifetime. First in every attribute that makes for Piano quality; the product of over 80 years' experience and constant endeavor, it stands to-day at the head of America's instruments, and America makes the finest pianos in the world.

The glorious thing about the Chickering Piano is that it stands in a class by itself, because of its magnificent tone; it occupies a position that is higher than that of any other Piano because of its inherent musical worth.

It is not merely "one of the best," or "a very good Piano," but it is the superior of every other that has been manufactured.

Do you think our praise is too strong?

Then inquire of some musician who is capable of giving a truthful and unbiased opinion. Or, better still, come here and let us show you the beauties of the famous Chickering tone; come and play over for yourself our stock of Chickering Pianos, and thus realize in the best possible way just what has made the Chickering name so revered by the whole musical fraternity.

MONSTER BARBECUE

TO BE HELD BY TOBACCO GROWERS ON APRIL 25.

Lexington Expects To Entertain 25,000 Farmers and Planters.

Lexington, Ky., March 16.—[Special.] At a meeting held to-day it was decided to hold the monster barbecue which is to be given under the auspices of the Burley tobacco branch of the American Society of Equity at Woodland Park in this city on April 25. Judge F. A. Bullock reported that a committee appointed to estimate the cost of the barbecue had decided that about $3,000 would be required if as many as 25,000 people attended and no food was donated. Congressman W. P. Kimball, Joust Shouse, Gen. Gentry, Judge Matt Walton, John G. Cramer, Mayor Combs and other prominent citizens made brief speeches urging that every citizen of the county do his part toward extending genuine Kentucky hospitality to all the world on April 25.

To Get Pure Milk.

A meeting of the dairymen who sell milk in Lexington was held at the courthouse to-day to take action on the recent order of the Lexington Board of Health requiring veterinary certificates of soundness for every cow from which milk is sold. W. B. Hawkins, president. Dr. J. C. Carrick, president of the Board of Health, delivered an address in which he stated that J. B. Haggins, the millionaire owner of Elmendorf stock farm, would soon enter the local milk market by establishing a vast, up-to-date dairy, in which every requirement of the law would be anticipated, and that it would be necessary for every dairyman to meet the new competitor by improving to the utmost his own plant and methods. Dr. Haggins said that he believed most of the dairymen were in favor of the new law, but that if it was enforced strictly it would certainly result in an increase in the price of milk, which would work a hardship on the citizens of the city. Dr. N. R. Simmons, City Health Officer, said that if he had strictly enforced the ordinance it would have put every milk seller in the city out of business, but that he did not desire to injure the dairymen by hasty action, though the health of the city must be protected. At the conclusion of these speeches it was decided to adjourn the meeting till next Saturday, at which time the dairymen will form an organization and take steps to co-operate with the Board of Health in enforcing the ordinance.

Arrested On Murder Charge.

Capt. Jenkins and Lieut. Overly to-day arrested Robert Hawkins, colored, who is wanted in Danville on the charge of murder. It is alleged that on November 4 Hawkins killed Henry Baughman, colored, at Danville, by cutting his victim's throat with a knife. He escaped after the murder and has been at large until the officers this morning caught him in bed at a house on Spring street, where he had arrived last night.

Lexington Notes.

Charles H. Stoll to-day purchased the County Orphan Asylum property on West Third street at private sale. The establishment has become too small for the needs of the asylum, which will be moved to some other point, where more room can be furnished. The property embraces about three acres of land, and adjoins Mr. Stoll's residence. It is the intention of the purchaser to cut up this land into building lots for a new residence.

Charles Slade, a Lexington tailor, was arrested to-day on the charge of being a fugitive from justice. It is alleged that he is wanted at Somerset on a charge of stealing over a hundred dollars from a woman there.

Alarm was caused among the guests of the Phoenix Hotel at Lexington this morning by fire being discovered in the drug store which occupies a part of the hotel building. The arrival of the firemen aroused the hotel guests, but the fire was found to be only a small blaze of a pile of waste and was quickly extinguished.

IN MEMORIAM.

Resolutions on the Death of Benjamin Humphreys.

The following resolutions upon the death of Benjamin Humphreys were passed by the Avalonite Club, a social organization, composed of Masons, at its last meeting:

For the first time since the organization of the Avalonite Club, on March 3, 1907, the unwelcome visitor, death, came within our midst and took with him one of our most beloved and popular members, Ben Humphreys.

In consequence thereof the remaining members of this club are more than grief-stricken. Our friend and companion who was so suddenly called away from a life of useful labor, to an eternal life of peace and happiness, was of a most cheerful disposition, cheerful under all circumstances; charitable to a fault; kind to all, gentle as a lamb; pure in heart; honest and honorable in all his dealings with his fellow-men; and believing in the Golden Rule. He brought with him to the club most interesting and valuable knowledge, and a pleasant smile, his pleasant voice and charming personality. Others may come and others may go, but none will be missed like him.

Now, therefore, be it resolved that we, his former fellow-members and his companions, express our heartfelt sympathy to his mother, sister and brother, in their hour of trouble and sorrow, and may they find comfort and consolation in the thought and knowledge that he is now at a home, not built by hands, but in heaven, where he will be missed by all who loved him.

By WALTER D. METCALFE, SAM'L B. METCALFE, Committee.

In Memory of Our Dear Wife and Mother, Annie C. Koehler, Who Died March 18, 1906.

Mother has gone, but not forgotten. Never shall her memory fade from my mind. Sweet thoughts shall ever linger around the grave where she is laid. No more shall we hear your kind voice. For the soul that loved us has fled; No more shall we see your loving face. For our mother, dear mother, has died. Sleep, dear mother, and take your rest. God, who took you, though you be dead, HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

M. T. Fordyce, a dental student, living at 1216 East Walnut street, was held up and robbed of $8 in money by three highwaymen at Floyd and Walnut streets early yesterday morning. Two of the hold-up men covered him with revolvers and threatened to kill him if he made any outcry while the third man rifled his pockets. LOCAL NOTICES.

RUPTURE DEFINED.

"Rupture is not a tear or breach in the abdominal wall, as commonly supposed, but is the stretching or dilation of a natural opening," said F. H. Seeley, the Chicago street expert, now stopping at the Seelye Hotel. Continuing, "the Spina-matic shield, a scientific invention, therefore not only retains the rupture comfortably, but reduces the opening in ten days."

Mr. Seeley will remain in the city a few days and gladly show all who call without charge. Local physician present.

Sale of Exquisite Easter Attire.

In order to give our out-of-town friends the same advantage as home folks in their Easter shopping, we have timed this most extraordinary sale to accommodate visitors to the Greater Louisville Exposition, which starts to-morrow.

No lengthy descriptions will be attempted in this announcement. Suffice to say that there are no goods as pretty, as exclusive, as distinctive as ours. No values superior.

Our establishment fairly teems with the new spring creations in all kinds of Ladies' Apparel ready to wear.

We briefly mention an item or two from several departments. In addition to those featured we invite your special notice to our gorgeous display of imported and domestic novelties in Dinner Gowns, Party Dresses, Evening Coats and Parisian Negligees.

Coat Suits $25.

We mention a range of suits at this price because it is a very popular figure, accommodating the purse of many ladies.

Our suits for this sum consist of fine Panama, in black, brown and other plain shades, stripes, checks and fancy weaves in a multitude of colorings varying from light to dark colors.

In the assortment you will find smart Eton suits trimmed with lace, embroidery, silk bands, etc. Also Pony and Prince Chap styles in severely tailored models.

All of these suits have very full plaited or kilted skirts, some with tailored folds at the bottom. There are both style and quality to this range of suits and no such values were ever offered at $25.00.

OTHER TAILORED SUITS UP TO $150.

Silk Suits $16.50

The silk suit is a prime favorite this spring. We have picked out a very nice one for to-morrow's selling to go at the above sum. It comes in two styles.

One is trimmed in Persian bands and velvet. It has a lace yoke and is very dainty and pretty. We have them in black, brown, champagne and all other desirable shades.

The other is a tailored tuck suit. Has a charming little yoke of Irish hand crochet. These come in the same color range as the suit mentioned above.

Both these dresses have full plaited skirts, and the quality of silk used is much better than the price would indicate.

OTHER SILK SUITS UP TO $75.

Lingerie Suits

$17.75.

We shall feature a Princess model this week for the price mentioned. It is made of an exquisite French mull. You have choice of white, pink, lavender, ecru and the most pleasing shade of light blue.

MANTLE FALLS ON KINNARNEY

Dashing Lieutenant Elevated To Rank of Captain.

Advances For Sergt. Doran and Corp. Whitman.

Jerry Camozzi Gets Corporal's Stripes Again.

TWOPATROLMEN EXONERATED

Lieut. James Kinnarney is now Captain, having been appointed yesterday by the Board of Public Safety to succeed Capt. Tom Riley, discharged. Sergt. John Doran was appointed Lieutenant to succeed Kinnarney, and Corp. Louis Whitman, who was seriously injured during an encounter with a crowd of strike sympathizers, was appointed Sergeant to succeed Doran. Patrolman Jerry Camozzi, who, then a Corporal, was dismissed from the force some months ago and reinstated after it was found that the charges preferred against him by a woman were groundless, was appointed Corporal to succeed Corp. Whitman.

Capt. Kinnarney will be assigned to duty at the Seventh police district, and Capt. Sam Owens, in charge there, is to be transferred to the First district police.

The promotion of Capt. Kinnarney was a popular one, he having displayed great courage and determination during the strike. He is considered one of the most fearless men on the force, and has never been known to fail in the performance of his duty.

The appointment of patrolmen to take the places of the men dismissed from the police force will not be made for several days. Mayor Barth is anxious to get the best men possible to fill the existing vacancies.

Two Patrolmen Cleared.

Patrolmen Dan Sullivan and J. J. Barrett were proved innocent of the charges preferred against them at the hearing before the Board of Public Safety yesterday. The patrolmen were charged with having failed to disperse a mob that attacked an East Broadway car. It developed at the hearing yesterday that the men were victims of a conspiracy intended to cause their undoing, because they had refused to join Capt. Tom Riley and the nine men who went with him in rebelling against the orders of Col. Sebastian Gunther.

According to the testimony of Col. Gunther at the hearing yesterday, strike sympathizers overheard the conversation between himself and Capt. Riley when the latter refused to obey orders, and having been informed that Patrolmen Sullivan and Barrett were the only men who remained true to their captain, they decided to cause their defection. They arranged to ambush the car to which they knew the two patrolmen were assigned.

Endured Vicious Attack.

The attack was a most vicious one, and despite the number of missiles hurled through windows the men stuck to their post. They had previously been instructed by the chairman of the Board of Public Safety not to fire into the crowd if attacked, and consequently when several of the passengers aboard the car requested them to use their revolvers they refused. They knew it was useless for them to leave the car and attempt to disperse, with only their night sticks as weapons, the mob that surrounded them, and despite great danger to themselves, remained aboard the car to which they had been assigned. They were charged with cowardice and suspended by the Board of Public Safety at 10 o'clock that morning, but in the face of this suspension remained aboard the car and defended their position until it entered the barn at 7 o'clock that night.

These Alone Were Steadfast.

James B. Smith, chairman of the Board of Public Safety, explained at the hearing yesterday that Patrolmen Barrett and Sullivan were the only men directly under Capt. Riley who refused to follow his lead in refusing to obey orders. When Maj. Patrick Ridge and Mr. Smith arrived at the car barn after Capt. Riley had left it, Barrett and Sullivan were the only two patrolmen who stepped forward and expressed a willingness to do what they were ordered to do. Both men said they were willing to take the car out alone if they were so ordered, and they did so.

If you pull through and escape Pneumonia, the worst part of Grip is the prostration, the lassitude, the slow convalescence. The advantage of "Seventy-seven" over other remedies is, that its tonicity sustains the system during an attack of Grip and there is no break down.

"Seventy-seven" cures by going directly to the sick spot without disturbing the rest of the system, the cure is complete. "77" fits the vest pocket.

The Baldwin Piano

Miss Germaine Schnitzer, whose marvelous piano playing at the Woman's Club, Friday evening, March 8, both surprised and delighted a most critical audience, attributes much of her success to her use of the BALDWIN PIANO, the medium through which she is able to bring out the wonderful musical genius she possesses.

Miss Schnitzer says of the Baldwin Piano:

"Never have I played upon a piano with a tone and touch so sympathetic, an action so responsive throughout. It enables me to convey musically every thought and emotion I feel."

Pugno says of the Baldwin Piano:

"It satisfies me in the most complete manner."

suspended from the force on charges preferred by an inspector of the railway company, was exonerated after a hearing yesterday. It was proved by the testimony of the motorman and conductor that Patrolman Sullivan had done all that he had been asked to do, and that he did not show the least hesitancy in the performance of his duty. They testified that the inspector had ordered them to prefer charges against the patrolmen, but that they had refused even though they ran the risk of being discharged.

Company Would Reward Whitman.

A letter containing a check for $250 was received by the Board of Public Safety yesterday from the Louisville Railway Company, the money having been intended for Corporal Louis Whitman, who was seriously injured while attempting to protect the property of the railway company from destruction by a mob. The board returned the check to the company with the statement that Whitman could not be allowed to receive it, as he was injured in the performance of his duties and would draw full pay from the city while incapacitated.

Mayor Barth called at the home of Whitman yesterday morning and made arrangements for a trained nurse to wait upon him during his illness. He praised Whitman for his bravery and acquainted him with the fact that he was to be made a sergeant even before the Board of Public Safety made public the fact.

MISUNDERSTANDING OF ORDERS STARTED STORM TO BREWING.

MAYOR INTERVENES FOR MEN.

Every man who was employed by the Louisville Railway Company at the time the strike was called, no matter whether he was arrested, is to be taken back into the employ of the company. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday afternoon by T. J. Minary, president of the company. He explained that a misunderstanding of J. T. Funk's orders by those in charge of the different bars was responsible for several of the men who had been arrested having been turned away yesterday morning.

Mr. Funk later placed himself in communication with the bar bosses and instructed them to allow all the former employees to return to work. This was not done, however, until a committee of street car men, headed by W. L. Jacobs, called at the Mayor's office at the City Hall and informed him that the terms of the agreement in which the strikers had agreed to return to work were being violated.

Mayor Barth was considerably wrought up over the information given him by the members of the committee. They reported that street car men, who had been arrested during the trouble, but whose cases had been dismissed after a hearing in the Police Court, were refused employment when they appeared at their respective bars yesterday. The Mayor immediately placed himself in communication with George Gaubert, one of the directors of the railway company, and told him that if he had been informed correctly, the company was making a grievous mistake and that the employees were being dealt with unfairly.

He said that he had protested against the insertion of a clause in the agreement between the strikers and railway company which provided that none of the men who were arrested should be given their old places back, and that at the time he had contended that such a clause would cause trouble. The clause had been stricken from the agreement, he said, and he further stated that if the company was refusing to take back the men who had been dismissed of the charge against them in Police Court, it was acting in bad faith.

Before the Mayor hung up the telephone receiver Mr. Gaubert assured him that he would inquire into the matter and that if he found conditions to be as stated he would do his best to remedy them. When the Mayor turned to the spokesman of the committee that waited upon him and told him what Mr. Gaubert had said, the members of the committee applauded the Mayor for his action in coming to their rescue, and before leaving the office gave three cheers for Mayor Barth.

After leaving the City Hall the committee waited upon J. T. Funk, superintendent of the Louisville Railway Company, and he received it courteously. He assured the members of the committee that the failure to take back the men against whom charges had been preferred, but later dismissed, was due to a misunderstanding that would be remedied.

Lancaster, Ky., March 16.—[Special.]—A number of farmers and stock raisers have organized a Duroc-Jersey Association here, and the following officers were chosen: Elder F. M. Tindler, president; R. L. Elkin, secretary and treasurer. A number of growers of the better breeds of swine attended the recent "fine hog exhibit" in Louisville and purchased several first-class porkers at large prices. The association was organized with twelve charter members.

JURY IN DAMAGE SUIT UNABLE TO AGREE.

Cynthiana, Ky., March 16.—[Special.]—The jury in the $10,000 damage suit brought by Shirley Frisbie against Ashley Ward for assault and battery was unable to agree, and was discharged. The suit was the result of a fight on the streets of Cynthiana about a year ago, in which Frisbie was shot in the arm by Ward. Both are social leaders in Cynthiana, and the fight was caused by alleged insulting remarks made by Frisbie to a young lady.

SUNDAY PRICE FIVE CENTS.

PUBLIC'S FRIEND.

Such Gov. Hughes' Role In Contest With Senate.

ONLY HOPE TO LASH CORPORATIONS MEN INTO LINE.

CO-OPERATIVE APARTMENT HOUSE LATEST SCHEME.

ONE KITCHEN FOR TENANTS.

New York, March 16.—[Special.]—The situation at Albany continues to hold the boards throughout the State. Will the Governor, supported by Republicans and Democrats of the Independent type, and public opinion as well, succeed in forcing the Senate to sanction his reform measures? Must there be a deadlock throughout the entire session. The public is most interested in, first, the removal of Supt. Kelsey; second, the passage of the bill for the control of public utilities, drawn by Mr. Hughes himself; and, third, the measure of Commissioner Bingham, giving him authority to reduce police inspectors in rank where they fail in the performance of their duties.

The battle over all three must take place in the upper house. It is there that some of the leaders, who are finally elected as the representatives of the people in their districts, really represent the large service corporations. Such charges have been made repeatedly and not denied. There is no question of partisanship at all in the State Senate. The time has arrived when instead of a line-up, with the Republicans on one side and the Democrats on the other, the division is between the Senators representing special interests and those who come to Albany to serve the people.

The question is how long the voters will stand for such a state of affairs. Gov. Hughes understands the situation thoroughly. He knows that he cannot count upon the Senate to act favorably on his measures without some outside pressure. As a result the Governor in his own way is taking the public into his confidence. He is creating a powerful sentiment favorable to his ideas. Some of the State Senators are aware of its force, and this is counted upon to cause them to favor the reform measures. There is no doubt that if they succeed in blocking the efforts of the Governor their conduct will be an issue of the campaign of 1908, one that will bring about their retirement from office. It was such pressure which forced the Upper House to pass the Franchise Tax Bill, and it may succeed again as believed by many.

What Ziegler Accomplished.

The late William Ziegler, whose widow has just brought out a magazine for the blind, was a millionaire, useful to the public in his own way. He began by lighting the ring in Brooklyn which planned to sell the city some waterworks at an exorbitant figure. Ziegler fought the rascally deal, and expense and introduced to the public as a reformer, William J. Gaynor, now a Justice of the Supreme Court, who was one of the executors of his will. Later on he grew interested in exploring the North Pole and fitted out an expedition for that purpose with Eberhard Baldwin as its head. Some scandal crept into his life in later years. Gov. Folk, of Missouri, charged that the Baking Powder Trust, of which Ziegler was head, had bribed the Legislature and sought to bring the millionaire to St. Louis for trial. Ziegler denied any knowledge of the bribery and proved he was not in Missouri at the time it took place.

Urges Jewish Revival.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, who has cut loose from his old synagogue to reach a greater class of Jews, recently urged a Jewish revival. He said that it must come through the consciousness of a Jewish brotherhood. "No real revival can take place," Rabbi Wise urged, "until we appreciate that our brothers in other parts of the world are equally in Eastern Europe, cannot do everything for themselves." He said that the Jews need to be united, and that the Douma, Hebrew philanthropy has only healed wounds, he declared, but has done nothing to prevent them. The American Jew, the Rabbi urged, has been too long accustomed to treat the Russian Jew as an immigrant, not as a Jew. He went on to say that the time for a revival is at hand. "That revival means daily living and daily doing. It is something more than the revival of the past. He believed that the Synagogue should be opened every day and that the old-time crises should be restored.

Cooperative Apartments.

New York is threatened with a co-operative apartment house. The scheme has been tried in Copenhagen and Stockholm and is said to have met with some success. Prof. Otto Ficko, who seeks to introduce it here, is a friend of Jacob A. Riis. The plan is to erect a five-story building that will accommodate twenty-five families. Every tenant will be a stockholder in the building. The amount of his stock will be equivalent to what the rent of his flat would be. There is to be a kitchen owned by the company in which all the cooking is to be done. The meals are to be sent by dumb waiters to the various apartments. In addition, the corporation will furnish all the necessities required by the tenants. Families may hire a servant by the day or week, just as they require. There will also be a kindergarten in the building.

Some excitement was created by rumors that the visit of Gen. Booth to this country would be followed by the union of the Salvation Army with the American Volunteers, Ballington Booth, however, denied the rumor. The union of the Volunteers and the split is there, for destined to remain. The division in the ranks of the Salvation Army was caused by the dissatisfaction of William Booth with the intense Americanism of his son Ballington. He finally replaced Ballington with Bowditch, whereupon the former and his wife seceded from the army, formed the Volunteers and appealed to the public to sustain them. This was eleven years ago. The organization has grown since the criminal crisis. Some time ago she endeavored to found a home for released convicts. The project, however, was fought by the people in whose locality it was sought to build.

OUTLOOK GLOOMY

Proposed Organic Union of Churches Now In Doubt.

ARDOR OF THE SEVERAL DENOMINATIONS COOLING.

HEDGING TACTICS CREATE GENERAL ADVERSE SENTIMENT.

DOINGS OF RELIGIOUS WORLD.

The outlook for a consummation of the proposed organic union of the Congregational, Methodist Protestant and United Brethren denominations, in the opinion of leaders in those named and other religious bodies, is not bright. On March 19 there is to be a meeting in Chicago of the general committee representing the three denominations and the men who favor union assert that they expect the matter then to be consummated. On the other hand it is asserted that for some months there has been growing among United Brethren, a strong sentiment against organic union, and disinterested observers of religious matters believe that this sentiment will operate to prevent consummation of the union, especially as the denomination in which it is admittedly strongest is the one which originally, four or more years ago, sent out a letter inviting several other bodies to unite with it in a movement looking toward union.

This invitation was not originally sent to Congregationalists, at least that denomination was not named in the letter, but a United Congregational Committee on Union, appointed by the National Council, asked to be included in the negotiations, and as the matter took definite shape there were but three religious bodies represented by committee in the negotiations, the Congregational, United Brethren and Methodist Protestant. The first named was larger, in point of membership, than the other two combined, Congregationalists numbering about 625,000, while United Brethren and Methodist Protestants are respectively 245,000 and 123,000. There have been a number of meetings of the joint committee of these bodies and the utmost good will and fellowship has been manifested. Because of their superior numbers, however, Congregationalists have in some measure dominated the deliberations, so much so that at one of the joint meetings, several months ago, Congregational representatives practically demanded that the word "Congregational" should be included in any title adopted for the united churches.

For several months it has been evident that leaders among United Brethren have been "hedging," as one leader expresses it. Now it is asserted by some of them that the original invitation was that other bodies might consider adopting the creed and policy of the United Brethren, and that there was not implied a willingness on the part of that denomination to consider merging itself with others. Legal difficulties in the way of organic union are being emphasized, and decisions of the courts in the matter of the Presbyterian and Cumberland Presbyterian union are being quoted in support of the position that it is impracticable for the United Brethren organically to unite with the other bodies.

This new attitude of the United Brethren leaders, some of whom had been foremost advocates of union, has occasioned no little surprise in the Congregational and Methodist Protestant bodies. In the latter there has been some opposition to the union plans, but the majority has expressed itself heartily willing to become party to them. In the Congregational Church the sentiment has favored union, provided the Congregational policy should in the main be maintained, and some leading men in this denomination welcomed the new organization which was to result from union of the three bodies, because they believed it was likely to furnish a form of centralized government which they believed Congregationalism to lack.

On the eve of the Chicago meeting it is believed that the union plan is in jeopardy, as Methodist Protestants, it is believed, may also withdraw if the United Brethren do, since the existing ties between these denominations are far stronger, so their leaders allege, than are those existing between Congregationalists and either of the others.

MISSIONARY TREASURERS BUSY Must Cover Expenditures on Faith By Actual Receipts.

Several denominational missionary organizations end their fiscal years in the spring, some closing their books at the end of March, others at the end of April, and in these closing days of their business years there is great activity in treasurer's offices to bring receipts up to a point that will cover the year's expenditures and leave at least a few dollars in the treasury for the next year. Officials of missionary organizations are unanimous in deploring the fact that it is necessary for them to conduct their affairs from hand to mouth, as it were. In practically all such organizations it is necessary to raise this year the money to be spent this year. Enterprises upon the mission fields, home and foreign, have to be established on faith. Definite sums are appropriated at the beginning of a fiscal year, with the expectation that the people in the churches will respond to demands made upon them and furnish money to meet the appropriations. It is for this reason, say officials, that missionary boards and societies occasionally run into debt, for work established on the fields has to be maintained even if support from individuals and churches proves inadequate.

The Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions closes its year April 30, a year ago it had a deficit of $110,000, of which amount about $70,000 was the deficit of the fiscal year then closed. This was caused by a falling off in amounts received from legacies, another uncertain factor with which missionary treasurers have to contend. Indications now are that this board will this year reduce its debt, as receipts for ten months of its fiscal year were nearly $30,000 ahead of last year, and appropriations had been somewhat reduced. The Home Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church has not reported a deficit for eight years, but its books are to close March 31, and there is still needed a large sum, several hundred thousand dollars, to enable it to close this year without debt. Officials of this organization consider the matter urgent, as the union with the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, which goes into effect in May, will place upon the board the responsibility of a large field in the Southwest where work needs to be done.

The United Baptist organizations, the Missionary Union and the Home Mission Society, close their books April 1. The Missionary Union started its fiscal year with a debt of $12,000, and a few days ago the Union's officials stated that over $400,000 would have to be received if the year was to be closed without debt. That the full amount will come in is doubted by Baptist leaders, and it is said to be likely that the debt of the Union will be increased to about $80,000. The Home Mission Society has a debt of $26,000 a year ago, and fear is expressed that this will be doubled when the books are closed the first of next month. To close without debt, the society must receive $280,000 during March.

EPISCOPAL MEN TO CONTRIBUTE Special Offering to Commemorate Settlement at Jamestown.

Men of the Protestant Episcopal Church are waking up, it is reported to the purpose of what is called the Missionary Thank Offering. On May 13 next will occur the exact anniversary of the landing of the party of English colonists at Jamestown, and the starting of the first permanent English religious service on this continent. It has been proposed during the past three years that the men of the Episcopal Church give something in appreciation of 300 years of English Christianity. Men have been called slow in responding, but at the approaching Easter a large number of parishes, especially in the large cities, will make formal pledges.

There is no effort to raise a particular sum. Rather is it sought to have every man give something. It is the expectation that New York, the largest of the Episcopal dioceses, will contribute about $250,000, and Pennsylvania, which is practically the city of Philadelphia, about $200,000. Boston is looked to for from $100,000 to $150,000, and it is expected that Connecticut will give a substantial sum. These figures are simple estimates based upon what leaders think can perhaps be done. Some think the total will run up to $2,000,000, but most of the leaders, including those in charge of the movement, will feel the thing has been a success if $1,000,000 is given.

The Episcopal Church, beyond any other, is already called upon for vast sums of money. In proportion to its numbers it gives a larger sum than any other religious body in America, just as the Church of England leads in offerings per member in England. There has long been a strenuous effort to increase the regular sums going to Episcopal missions, and no successful has the effort been that the income of the official board of missions has doubled within the past four years. The James-Edwards convention to be held at Richmond, Va., next October, which will be devoted to $2,000,000 which may be contributed to the fund for the giving of the money, for contributions may be designated for the destination of their gifts. As a matter of fact, most of it will go to the official board of missions, and it will be designated for work. That is, land in mission fields will be bought, debts will be paid off, churches and hospitals will be erected, etc. Various organizations in the church are clamoring for a share in the fund and it is held to be probable that some of them will be successful in obtaining some, but nobody has yet authorized the distribution of the fund. Leaders in the undertaking say that they will first get the money. Besides it is impossible as yet to tell what proportion of it may be designated by the givers.

GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

Dr. W. H. McGlaughlin, Universalist, Succeeds Dr. T. M. Atwood.

The trustees of the General Convention of the Universalist Church have just announced the election of the Rev. Dr. William H. McGlaughlin to the position of General Superintendent, which was made vacant a few months ago by the resignation of the Rev. Dr. T. M. Atwood. At the last meeting of the General Convention, held at Minneapolis, November, 1905, the filling of the office of General Superintendent was left to the discretion of the trustees, and as the convention meets again in November of this year there were some who thought that the trustees, having waited so long, should let the matter rest until the convention met. But the trustees were convinced that the time had come to fill the office, and that they had secured the right man for the place, so the election took place.

There is some misconception as to the duties of the Universalist General Superintendent, and some even among Universalists, have looked upon him as a sort of archbishop of the denomination. As a matter of fact he has no power except an advisory one. His duties were defined by the General Convention thus: "He is to supervise the spiritual interest of our church, and to promote its prosperity, by using his influence to stimulate the zeal and activity of our people; to secure unity and continuity of action on the part of our parishes; to encourage weak parishes; to revive dormant parishes; to remove causes of disaffection between pastors and parishes, etc."

The Rev. Dr. McGlaughlin, the new General Superintendent, is well known among the Universalist churches of the country. He long served the Young People's Union as a missionary in the South, and was later District Superintendent of the Northwest. It is said that he is favored throughout the denomination, and that there is not the slightest personal ground in objections to the appointment.

REVIVALS EFFECTIVE.

Healthy Increase in Church Membership All Over Country.

During the opening months of this year evangelistic efforts in different parts of the country have resulted in the awakening of great interest and while from no center is reported any wonderful revival, religious leaders report a healthy increase in church membership and attendance that more than justifies the evangelistic efforts directed by the denominational committees and the independent efforts of others.

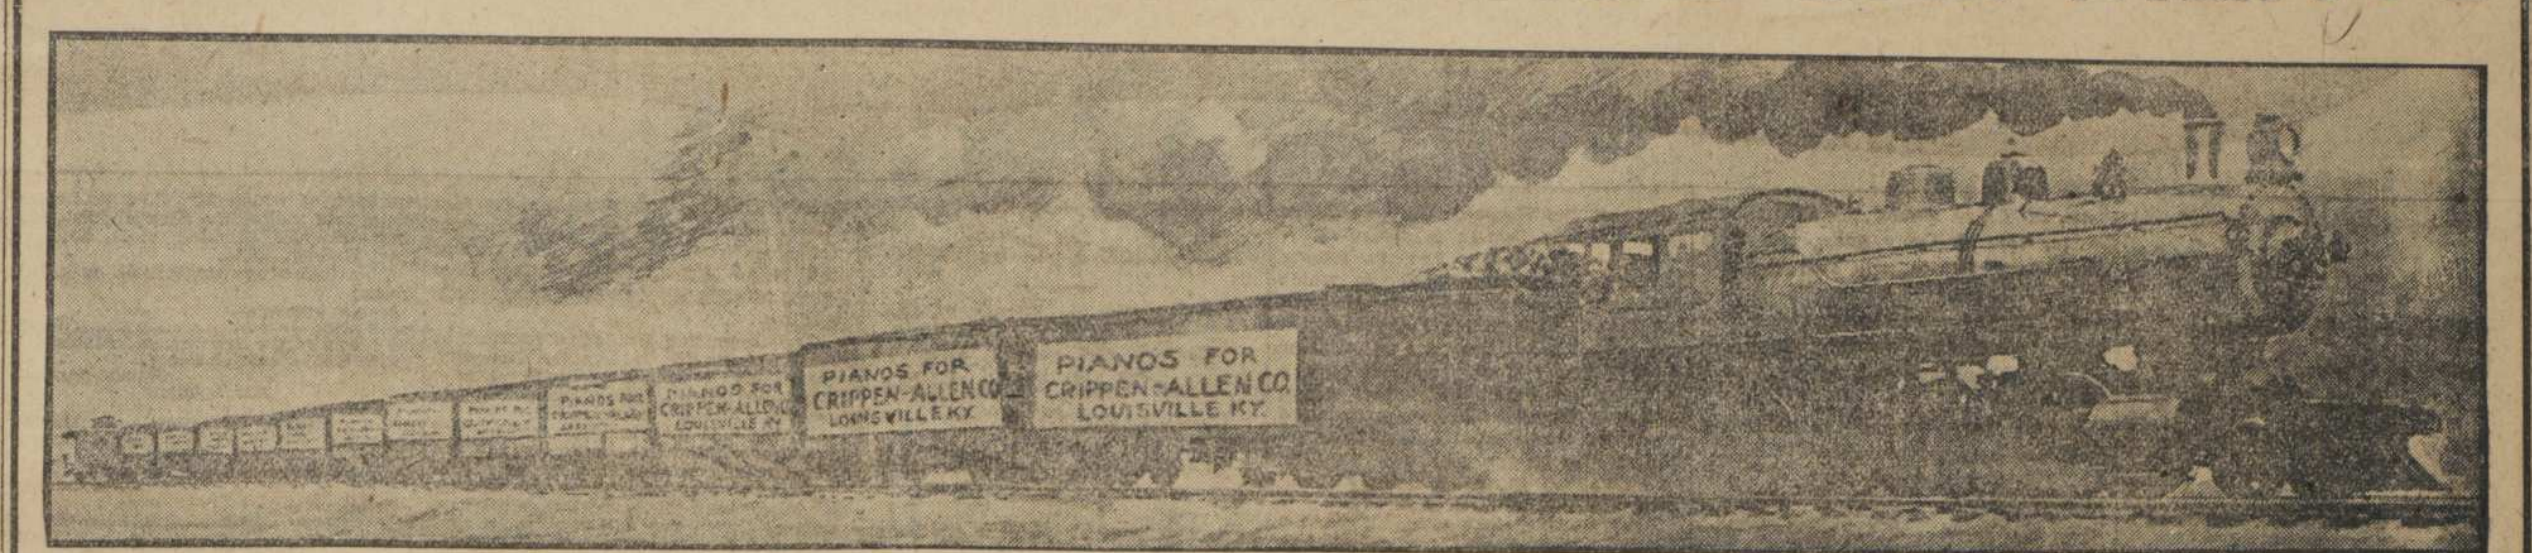

The dominant figure in the work is "Gipsy" Smith, the English Evangelist, who is in this country on the invitation of the Congregational Committee. He has recently preached to enormous audiences in Chicago, and is now repeating the experience in Brooklyn. The Rev. Dr. J. W. Chapman, who leads the Presbyterian evangelistic forces, is working in New England, and has recently preached to large audiences there, for there are practically no Presbyterians in that section, but to strengthen all the churches.

The Rev. Dr. A. A. Torrey, working independently of denominational direction, has had large meetings in Cleveland, where his work was attended with marked success. Detroit has had the Rev. Dr. George P. Pentecost, and several smaller Middle West cities have heard the Rev. William A. Sunday. The work started by Gipsy Smith in Chicago is being continued by the Rev. Dr. A. C. Dixon and the Rev. Dr. James M. Gray, a feature of their efforts being noon-day meetings in a downtown theater. It is said that Gipsy Smith has promised to return to Chicago in two years, and in the meantime the Young Men's Congregational Union of that city is to direct its efforts toward the redemption of the city.

Interchurch Temperance Council.

An Interchurch Temperance Council has been launched, action having been taken to that effect at a recent conference in Pittsburgh, called by committees of the Presbyterian and United Presbyterian General Assemblies. A plan of organization was outlined, and the proposed council is to be formed with seven denominations, shall have as its objects: The unity of all church temperance agencies, the promotion of general temperance, the securing of better laws, keeping the churches from entangling political alliances in temperance matters. When the council was first advocated, opinion was expressed that the movement might be detrimental to the Anti-Saloon League, in which many church leaders are interested. It has been pointed out, however, that the new organization will officially represent the denominations, which the league does not, and that Congregational Men to Organize.

The Congregational is the latest denomination to launch a plan for a national men's organization similar in plan to the Presbyterian Brotherhood. Since the Indianapolis convention of the organization named similar movements have been started in the Methodist, Baptist and United Brethren churches. Congregational leaders are welcoming the proposed organization in that body, and some leaders among Chicago Congregational laymen, who started the movement, are receiving the warmest encouragement from all sections of the country. It is held to be altogether likely that the organization will definitely be formed during the meeting of the Congregational National Council next fall. A committee of ten Chicago men is conducting correspondence with this in view.

Cast and Chorus

Of Mrs. Woolfolk's Musical Farce, "The Traveling Man," == Beautiful Chorus With Song and Dance Artists Galore.

EVERY afternoon during the past week a number of girls and men who are to take part in Mr. Boyle Woolfolk's musical farce, "The Traveling Man," which is to be given at Macaulay's Theater on April 3, have been rehearsing at the Business Woman's Club.

The men and girls are full of enthusiasm over the play and the music, and in addition to the large chorus, there will be a number of principal parts. The cast has been about completed. There are a few parts to be decided on, and several girls, who are now out of town, are coming home to take part in the play.

The scene of the play is laid in a small town, Wildwood, in Texas, and the action takes place in the Claire House, the hotel of the village.

Belle Claire, the daughter of the proprietor of the hotel, is in love with Jim Dandy, a traveling man who sells steam radiators. She is expecting his arrival at the hotel, and has written a note to him, and in looking over the mail to find whether or not he has asked for his letters and received her note, she discovers a blue envelope addressed to him, with the initials D. S. on the flap.

The Daisy Shine Opera Company is due in Wildwood, and Belle, on seeing the blue envelope, jumps to the conclusion that Mr. Dandy's note is from the star of the theatrical troupe.

She tears up her own note to him, and writes another to the effect that she has been suddenly called out of town on account of the illness of her father, who has gone away for his health.

In the meanwhile the opera company arrives, and Belle overhears a conversation between the manager of the company and Dolly Snow, one of the troupe. It seems that Daisy Shine was too ill to leave the last town the company played in, and Dolly Snow is to be passed off in Wildwood as the real star.

Belle decides she will disguise herself as Daisy Shine, having a photograph of the actress to guide her in her make-up, and to discover where Jim Dandy's real affection lies.

From this situation, naturally all sorts of complications arise. There are already two Daisy Shines, and when the manager hears of a third, he goes wild with excitement.

Jim Dandy is equal to the occasion and makes love to the two Daisy Shines who are on the scene, and the real Daisy Shine suddenly appears, having recuperated sooner than was expected and having caught a freight train to bear down upon the company in a fury, hearing she was being impersonated.

Belle Claire, after catching Jim Dandy making love to another girl, upbraids him and then has to seek his protection and confess the part she played, in order to get him to keep the secret from the real Daisy Shine and the manager.

A reconciliation follows, and two other traveling men who have come to Wildwood fall in love with Daisy Shine and Dolly Snow, and the manager is assured of a packed house when his company plays.

Jim Dandy receives a telegram from his firm announcing his election as vice president and general manager of the steam radiator company, and he invites the whole troupe to a supper, and announces that he and Belle will be married at once and will leave for the East.

There are a number of good character parts in the play, including four drummers, a Jew who sells jewelry and a young man who sells furs.

Miss Elizabeth Green will take the most gratifying one, revealing the fact that Louisville has taken her place on the honor roll, fourth in order among the larger cities of the Union, New York, Cleveland and Rochester only leading.

The committee decided to forward at once a check for $460 to Mr. Benedict, the general treasurer of the fund, as a first installment, this representing the amount thus far contributed.

It was also unanimously agreed that the subscription list should be left open for further contributions.

The discrepancy between the number of subscribers (200) and the number of notices (1,000) sent out is so great that they feel more than justified in believing that further amounts may still be forthcoming; and in trusting that the opportunity to take part in this noble movement may still be taken advantage of by some who had either overlooked it, or not fully realized its importance.

Contributions may be sent to the treasurer, Mrs. William R. Belknap, 406 West Ormsby avenue.

Clark, who enjoys a national reputation, and who has the position as head of the Department of Public Speaking in the University of Chicago, will deliver a lecture next Thursday night in the assembly hall of the Temple Adath Israel, on the subject of "Stephen Phillips' Ulysses." Prof. Clark has spoken in Louisville before large and enthusiastic audiences, and has a great number of personal friends in Louisville.

AT THE
THEATERSTainted Money Subject of Three Plays
Put Forth In Past Week In New York City

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]
NEW YORK, March 15.—Tainted money is the subject of three plays put forth here this week. In the case of "The Spoilers" the theme exactly stated is a greed for gold, not coined into money, but as yet ore in an Alaskan mine. One of the recent fictional writings of fact was Rex Beach's story of governmental wrongs in our territory in Alaska—how the first courts there were utilized to take mines away from their owners and turn them over to authorized looters—how vigilantes thereupon displaced the formal processes of adjudication, and how a young man and a young woman, mutual lovers, had their hearts caught and crushed between the opposing forces.

I remember to have read that Mr. Beach evolved the book from his own personal observation, so far as its exposure of political dishonesty was concerned, after returning from Alaska, where he had lost a mine to the "spoilers," but publishers nowadays are like theatrical managers in employing agents to lie to the newspapers; so no one needed to believe that Mr. Beach had lost a gold mine in Nome, any more than that some actress had been robbed of a pint of diamonds in the Tenderloin. However, as Mr. Beach stood before a Broadway audience, wriggling and twisting in the agonies of certain-called transports of delight, he didn't look like a man who would—at least not under the stress of that moment of pleasurable torture—undertake to tell a lie. I should say that he would have told his real name, and all his aliases, if asked, and confessed to the hatching of a whole grove of cherry trees, if accused. He said that truth was back of the play, which his director, Mr. Mapes, tells me that "The Great Gatsby," the dizzily high-art play which, of the whole repertoire, pleased the season's subscribers most, as carrying out the uplifting design of the enterprise best, drew in less than a hundred dollars of the general public's money in an entire week, and that "The Spoilers," which the subscribers disliked for being merely an American melodrama, came nearer than any other of the productions to commensurate prosperity. Daniel Frohman, the literary and artistic one of the Frohman brothers, has taken up "The Spoilers" as a reasonable theatrical venture, given an uncommonly fine outfit to it, and bravely offered it in melodramatic Broadway. The look of it is that it will thrive. But I don't predicate that judgment on the enthusiasm of the first-night audience. Author Beach's friends rallied numerously. So did those of his collaborator, Meathur. Most of those in the parquet were not madish, were benevolent, but I don't think that any other edge of civilization play has ever gathered such an audience of height in foreheads and fashions. Ralph Stuart is the actor of Roy Glenister, the staid fellow who begins by saying "there's never a law of God or man that runs north of fifty-three," and so believing, starts in to woo an Alaskan girl tourist brutally, like a bulldog hunting quail; and I was amused to watch the audience's discovery of Stuart. He had been an idolized leading man of a stock company in Lexington avenue, also one in Eighty avenue, and he had toured startlingly, yet Broadway felt itself critically astute to find in him an accomplished actor. He was called out with an enthusiasm that had a patronizing manner—an I-saw-him-first asseveration—to which the actor bowed quite as though applause was a new and surprising delight to him. Instead of being a twice-a-day experience for years, not since Hackett thrust and slashed his way to popularity with a sword in "The Prisoner of Zenda," even when Bellewield a blade for love in "A Gentleman of France," had that sort of a New York audience been so excited by a stage fight as this one was when Stuart thrashed the villain. And that was but one of many lively incidents transferred from the book to the play.

I haven't gone wrong if I have imparted the idea that "The Spoilers" is a first-class play, a first-class melodrama. Many plays of that character have been aimed West and Southward, but this is the first to go in the far Northwest, and it hit the bull's-eye at the opening fire. In New York it had an emotional son, in its brazen body.

Shaw's "Widowers' Houses."

The houses indicated by George Bernard Shaw, in giving the mock scriptural title of "Widowers' Houses" to the first play he ever wrote, and the twelfth to be performed in this city, are ramshackle, unsanitary tenements, such as London law used to permit rapacious landlords to pen squalid tenants in like cages. Their owner is a Pocklington church warden whom Dickens might have made a reformer; but whom Shaw, with an overwhelming desire to exploit himself, wastes in a drama of heartless cynicism. This accumulator of tainted money, played by Charles Hawtrey's elder brother, William, has a daughter prettily embodied by Effie Shannon, who enjoys the luxuries which the money brings, with no thought of the shame of it. She has a lover, whom Henry Kolker renders manly of manner, and who at first breaks the betrothal, because the girl won't decline an allowance from her father, but when he learns that his own income is doubled by an usurious mortgage on his prospective father-in-law's disgraceful property, he forgoes scruples and takes the revenue. Herbert Kelcey delineates a thoroughly soulless friend and adviser of Kolker, and Ferdinand Gottschalk has a part. I give the actors' names to show that there is an ably expeditious cast.

This country has been talking about Rockefeller's money being so tainted by its trust that it is never used, and ought not to be accepted in pious beneficence. This city has just been told again that truth is in the matter, and that the ownership of just such bad houses for bad tenants as Shaw denounces. Gen. Bo. of the Salvation Army, arrived here, a few days ago, to raise a fund for a Humane College, to train workers for the whole world's slums, and he says no money is too dirty for charity's tears to wash clean if Shaw's play were but as convincing as it is timely. But it is not.

Permit me a paragraph to convict Shaw of ineptness. He wrote the first two acts of "Widowers' Houses," and lowered his second curtain on the high-minded denunciation by over that he wouldn't marry his sweetheart un-

AND A SCENE
FROM "THE ILLUSION OF BEATRICE"
MACAULEY'S

with William in this piece is his brother Joseph; also, a son of the Dion Boucicault who wrote for Jefferson the adaptable version of Washington Irving's legend of "Rip Van Winkle." Good stage material may have been as scarce then as it is now, but when found it was cheaper. Jefferson paid Boucicault $500, and that was all for the play that lasted half a century, and yielded a fortune. Irving didn't get one theatrical dollar, because dramatic rights in printed matter were not reserved; nor was there an international copyright law that had prevented Irving from plagiarizing the tale from a German original.

But let's come back to date. "Playing the Game," with which William and the second Joseph Jefferson are striking out for what people regard, with law in the last portion of the play, as a comedy standard, is the thousandth French farce in mockery of marriage. The authors are American journalists, to be sure—Cleveland Moffett and Hartley Dwyer—and the characters are Americans sportively active in New York's Tenderloin, but there is an Andalusian husband, with a Sapphic friend, in the overlying Parisian manner.

Mr. Jefferson In Paris.
William Jefferson was in Paris once, and I infer that he was an observer of life there in its swiftest velocities. My inference rests upon a story for which I have no other evidence, but which a telegraphed home for a thousand in haste. The father wired back, "What for?" The son answered, "For Willie." And a money order was mailed.

But Willie didn't buy Parisian bad habits with it. He came back and married the delicious little Christie McDodd. What a charming Meenie she would have made in the last portion of "Rip Van Winkle." And I am told that the father was exceedingly fond of her. But

Shaw's other drama of the week, "Mrs. Warren's Profession," the tainted money comes from houses vile with vice. The New York police stopped this play last year; a court now lets it go on, and we have proof positive that the public doesn't hanker for a nauseous dish once cooled and then warmed over. For the first New York representation, with a promise of official interference, the sidewalk price for a seat went up to $25. For the second when there was no hindrance, the vendors ran the rate down to a dollar for a ticket that had cost them two. Yet that tainted Shawness and its vice actress, Maude Fealy, was to be the first, and whatever appetite had been whetted for the mess rained ungratified. An uncertain business, that of the showman. Perhaps in the mean while the published play had been read generally, and had thus become a sorry house of ill fame. Here as in "Widowers' Houses" there is a daughter for a lover to reject on account of her parent's method of making money; and again the author throws away an opportunity to derive a good lesson from a bad theme; but instead of that he makes the young fellow nothing but selfish, the girl repellently cold in her purity, and the unshamed Mrs. Warren warmly emotional in her plea for sexual depravity as a permissible profession for women. "God help the world," she says at the tag, "when everybody tries to do right."

Three of Joseph Jefferson's sons, Thomas, Joseph and William, went into their father's profession, beginning small in his company and preparing to take up his role when he should lay them down. Thomas chose Rip Van Winkle, practiced it a little before he died, and then undertook a tour with it afterward. Bob Acres was famous to William. That left no famous rogue of Irving and Sheridan at it. Second, but he was to have Sir Lucius O'Trigger, and he played it a few times when the father presided. The third, William and Joseph started out long ago as Bob and Lucius, and stopped before long, as did Thomas with Rip. Even if Thomas and William had possessed their father's ability to be exquisitely humorous with the two rogues of Irving and Sheridan, it is doubtful if the public would have believed it. So it is that Tom Jefferson no more enacts the Cretaceous village ne'er-do-well, who exasperated his wife by mendacity and ineptness, escaped from her to carouse with strange revellers, and got so singularly drunk that he slept twenty years; and William no longer depicts the English rustic who went to London town for a variation of sport, and got into a duel. But William has shifted himself to a new play, which Louisville has seen and a good-enough Meenie was to be hired at $25 a week, while Christie could get $250 in singing, and she is willing to enter in the "Belle of Mayfair," while Willie acts in "Playing the Game," the conventional young man of conventional farce conventionally. Nor does Audrey Boucicault evince any heritage of graphic devility from his notorious audacious father. But there is a saving of the new farce by Joe Jefferson the Second, to whom fell neither Rip Van Winkle nor the Bob Acres of Joe Jefferson the First. At the drop of the curtain on the initial act the crack of the four doors of French farce open and changes on the cracked chime of marital infidelity is unbroken; but when the curtain goes up again, as you have seen, a man from Mississippi arrives at the Waldorf-Astoria, and thereafter the four doors of French farce open and shut to new purposes of fun. The American authors have infused American spirit into the incidents, but their work would be futile if that Mississippian were not acted by a good humorist, Beverly Clay, the truly Southern gentleman, sub, being caught with a lovely bogus widow and confronted by her real husband, doesn't skulk and sneak, as a stage Frenchman does in a similar predicament, but disarms the French farce in mockery of marriage. Don't misread me to say that old Joe Jefferson's Rip and Bob are equalled by young Joe Jefferson's Beverly Clay. I am merely telling that the New York rejected "Rip Van Winkle" from one Jefferson son and heir and "The Rivals" from a second, but accepts "Playing the Game," not critically, but hilariously, from a third. What do you imagine that the dead Jefferson was selling theatrical amusement at a price his sons are doing? Well, I once came to him as he was looking through a palm-eyebrow to a box.

Take a peep," he said.
I did so, and saw an illumined model of the wreck scene. The dean of American dramatists, in his last years, in a business way, in one of the sensational melodramas of that time; so I guess that the shades of the lovely old gentleman don't frown down on the present Joe and Willie Jefferson, so long as they are selling theatrical amusement at a price without actual abatement of the family name. Viola Allen On Shakespearean Heroines.

VIOLA ALLEN, who is now playing Imogen in "Cymbeline," writes in the Theater Magazine for December of the many disadvantages under which a Shakespearean actress labors. She says: "Not only does the critic and the thoughtful theater-goer take his seat on a Shakespearean first night with his own impressions of the play and character before him, but he remembers, also, other performances he has seen. Contrast the difference in the possibilities of success that confront the woman who attempts Juliet, Portia or Ophelia with three hundred years of comparison, as compared with those of one who appears before the same critic and the same audience in a play that is unknown, and in a character that cannot excite comparison because her interpretation is the only one. Another chance is found in the fact that while the modern play is written with the idea of telling a complete

A New French Play
Creates a Furore.

EMILE FABRE'S "HOUSE OF CLAY" DESCRIBED BY CRITICS AS THE STRONGEST EMOTIONAL DRAMA OF RECENT YEARS—IS ONE OF TWO NEW FRENCH PIECES, BOTH OF WHICH DEAL WITH DIVORCE.

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]

PARIS, Feb. 28.—Paris has within its gates at present the personal representatives of at least six leading British and American theatrical managers, to say nothing of a dozen or more of us whose normal habitat is London, and whose business is merely to write matters connected with the playhouse. Nor is the reason for this unwelcome "invasion" from across the channel far to seek, for within the past week quite extraordinary successes have been scored by two new French plays. Each of them, oddly enough, deals with the question of divorce, and one of the two, at any rate, is practically certain to be given in both the United States and Britain before much time has passed.

This piece is called "The House of Clay," and it deals with the tragedy, as the other play, "The Jacobins," deals with the comedy of divorce. Its author, Emile Fabre, goes to the very kernel of the problem—the child or children—and though opinions are conflicting as to the conclusiveness of the case which he makes against the remarriage of a divorced mother, there is no one to deny that he has succeeded in writing a very powerful and moving play. The French critics, in fact, describe "The House of Clay" as perhaps the strongest emotional drama of recent years, and providing that its original atmosphere is preserved, and no attempt made to give it either an English or an American setting, it is likely to prove quite as interesting and affecting to English-speaking audiences as it is found by those here.

It was given at the Comedie Francaise, on Tuesday last, and at the climax of the tempestuous second act, the dinar bias audience at the "national theater" insisted on having the curtain raised no less than eight times. Discussion raged. "The mother is right," one person was asserting. "The children are right," declared another. Rarely has such animation, such passionate interest been evoked by a French play. The author, by the way, is a sort of French Kipling, inasmuch as he rarely deals with love. He prefers to depict other passions: hatred, jealousy, greed. Money was the root of all evil in his "Ventes Dorees," produced last year at the Odéon, and money is dominant, too, in "The House of Clay."

Its moral is that no house built of clay of divorce can offer an effective resistance to the storms of life. In it we are shown a mother who is ready to sacrifice the interests of the children of her first marriage to those of her second lord and their child. This is Madame d'Armes, a woman, at the opening of the play, who, as the wife of a general, rich man, a thorn, by whom she has had a daughter, Marguerite. Her first husband, from whom she has been divorced for more than twenty years, was one Rouillon, and of this marriage there were two children, a son, Jean, and a daughter, Valentine. It was Madame d'Armes who obtained the divorce, because, as she says, she desired to "live a fuller life." He is in love with her, and she refuses to expand her own nature, to knit her soul with that of a man she really loved. So the thing was done, and the two children, the daughter, Valentine, followed her mother to the son, Jean, remaining with Rouillon père. The second marriage, is engaged to be married, and, of course, must bring her husband, a "dot." Suddenly it develops that her father, M. Armeries, is on the verge of ruin, and the only means by which he can be saved and Marguerite's marriage portion provided is that his wife shall sell her private estate, in which not only Jean and Valentine, the children of the first marriage, have an interest, but M. Rouillon himself. This part of the piece, by the bye, is extremely complicated, but the issue is clear. It is a question of the interests of the first "house," or those of the second, and Madame does not hesitate long. Armeries must be saved from ruin. Marguerite's marriage shall not be broken off because she has no dowry.

Among other properties, a factory which belongs to Madame Armeries is to be sold, and to complicate things still more, Jean Rouillon presents himself as a possible purchaser. His mother has not seen him since his childhood. He appears as an awkward, ill-dressed young man, who has nothing to say except in the business which has brought him there. "Of what shall we speak, if not of business?" he says. At all events, his heart is set on the purchase, which opens a career to him, but he cannot pay cash—and cash is vital to his mother on account of the financial predicament of the Armeries. One thing leading to another, Jean sees clearly that his instinct is to pay no heed to his interests or Valentine's if only her present husband's liabilities can be covered, and her younger daughter's dowry be provided. He insists that Valentine shall be summoned, and asked whether she will submit tamely to this wrong.

As Valentine appears and there ensues a really heartrending scene in which her pent-up resentment of her position in the domestic household bursts forth. It is all a most searching analysis of a painful situation, all the more painful because it is so realistic. Valentine is conscious of it. "You have been a mother to me," says Valentine, "to me, for I have been a mother to you. When I was ill, you didn't embrace me any more, for fear of giving me my fever. The scene grows more and more dramatic and violent, and culminates when Armeries enters, confronts his wife's sin, and orders him out of the house. As I have said, at this point in the first representation, the audience was entirely swept away by the force of the piece and the acting.

In the third act, the two girls have a violent altercation, as the result of which Marguerite decides to forego her dowry, and incidentally to quit the household. These are the two "big scenes" of the play, and they will act well on any stage. The remainder of the piece shows the dissolution of the "house of clay," and the final scene, which has failed to satisfy the claims upon her on either side, and falls short of both halves of her divorce duty. The two daughters go their separate ways, the son, and at the end the mother is left on the stage alone to face the new situation as best she can. No theatrical situation in many years has led to so much discussion in the French capital.

The other piece about divorce, "La Jacobine," has proved almost as big a hit as "La Maison d'Argile," but it is in its rightful place at the Paris "Vaudeville," and the rights for English speaking countries, at any rate, are not likely to be in demand. "La Jacobine," by the way, has also seen Parisians to asking a question: "Can a Married Woman be Engaged?" The "Jacobins" of the title are the French society women whom divorce serves as an easy way of being off with the old and on with the new, and though it is all, or nearly all, comedy, it is comedy mixed with biting satire. Abner is the author, and his hero is "spite" with a man other than his husband, and "engaged" to him—his marriage to take place just as soon as she can manage to get a divorce. But her husband won't hear of it. He is in love with her, and she refuses to a "mutual consent" arrangement. Moreover, when she tries to elope in disguise, she is caught, and the husband, and finally makes her choose between them in a scene which is somewhat like one in "Candida," though not so artistically handled, however, the husband "chooses" her husband, and so her "engagement" to the other man is broken off. No small part of the success of the piece is due to the manner in which well-known Parisian types are satirized. We have a society woman for instance, enamored of an American dentist, who has purchased a title in Rome. Another amusing scene is a particularly vicious scene where she enters and takes a photograph for his journal of society folk discussing the latest "charity."

SEEKING TO REOPEN
AN OLD CASE

F RANK McKee, Edward G. Gilmore and Eugene Tompkins appear in the United States Circuit Court last week asking for a reopening of the suit of Ida M. Fuller against them for infringement of patent.

The action was begun in 1902, when Miss Fuller brought suit against the defendants, then owners of Ninth and Nine, for using a device to represent flames. Miss Fuller owned a patent on a similar device. The defendants agreed to replace the device with one of their own invention and to pay Miss Fuller for the use of the patent up to that time. After the hearing it was recommended to the court that Miss Fuller be allowed $21,000.

The defendants in asking for a reopening of the case claim that they were not notified by their attorneys Howe and Hummel, of the progress of the case, and were given no opportunity to testify. Judge Hough, of the Circuit Court, refused to permit McKee to reopen the case, but permitted the defendants to file an objection to the master's report. An appeal was taken to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals upon giving a bond in the sum of $21,000.

Modern Algiers; How the Capital of African France Is Booming.

It Has a Forty-Million-Dollar Boulevard and Many Striking Improvements—One-Cent Car Fares, Ten-Cent Telegrams and Three-Cent Telephones—Algeria's Commerce.

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER.

ALGIERS, Algeria.—I am in the blazing white, many-terraced city of Algiers, the capital of African France. My hotel is the de la Regence, on the Place du Gouvernement, next the mosque of Djama el Djedid, within a stone's throw of the great palace which holds the Government offices, and just off the Boulevard de la Republique, in the very heart of the city.

From my window I can look out over the Bay of Algiers and the wide Mediterranean, with its ships going out and coming in. The foothills of the Atlas mountains line the opposite side of the harbor and the queer African capital rises up from it, in terrace above terrace, until it reaches the great white citadel, which formed the residence and chief fortification of the piratical days of the past.

Down at the wharves, where the city begins, are mighty breakwaters which extend out like arms at each end, embracing steamers and sailing vessels from all parts of the world. More than four thousand big vessels, and twelve thousand coasters, aggregating over three million tons, pass in and out of these arms every year. There are great Atlantic liners, which call here on their way from New York to Naples and Genoa, big steamers from China and Japan, and also fast ships from Marseilles which bring the mails on their five-hundred-mile voyage across the Mediterranean in less than twenty-four hours. These boats give Algiers a daily communication with its mother country, and they are always loaded with passengers and freight. Their rates are so low that French laborers and mechanics cross over by hundreds. A steerage passenger pays only $2.25 and the third-class travelers pay less than $5.

A Rich Country.

Come with me down to the wharves and see something of the enormous trade that Algeria does with all parts of the world. Its commerce is worth having, for it amounts to more than one hundred and fifty-five million dollars a year. Four-fifths of this is with France. Algeria buys from fifty to six million dollars worth of goods of her mother country every year, and her sales to France are only about ten million dollars less. So far the balance of trade is with France, but the resources of the colony are being rapidly developed and in time Algeria will be in the lead.

Running back from the harbor for a distance of perhaps five hundred feet is a level space covered with acres of warehouses. We reach these by stone steps and make our way in and out through mountains of cargo. Enormous wagons, hauled by from three to six horses, are moving about, directed by drivers in turbans and gowns; the railroad engines are shunting cars this way and that, and an army of bare-chested big-trousered Biskris are loading and unloading all kinds of goods. A bark, which is one of the chief exports, is stacked up like cord wood; hogheads of wine numbering thousands are piled one on the top of the other, and there are great mounds of bags of wheat and other grain ready for shipment. There are boxes of dates packed for Paris, and there are also enormous quantities of goods coming in.

Both on the wharves and out in the harbor are immense loads of coal. Algiers is one of the chief coaling stations of the Mediterranean and nearly all the ships which call there take on fuel. The shipping arrangements are of the best. The harbor has steam cranes and the trains from the interior come right down to the sea so that freight can be taken on board the ships almost direct from the cars.

Now turn your back to the sea and take a look at the city as it climbs the hills all about you. You must throw your head back and rest it well on your shoulders, or you can't see it at all. The city begins with a wall about one hundred feet high; it consists of vaults and warehouses, with one of the fine streets of the world over them. The pavement of the street forms the roofs of these buildings, and back and above it rises the rest of the city. The street the Boulevard de la Republique. With the warehouses below, its cost was more than $40,000,000. It was constructed on a long-time concession by an English company, and I understand that it pays big dividends to-day.

It is a wide avenue, facing the business part of the harbor, with a stone balustrade running along it. On the other side of the boulevard there are buildings which contain some of the chief banks, shops and business establishments of the city. The stores are on the ground floor only; above them are apartments with iron balconies along the front. The buildings are of yellow stucco of the even height of six stories, and down which a stream of wagons and carriages steadily moves.

On the boulevard itself gayly-dressed Europeans, mixed with stately Arabs in turbans and gowns, walk to and fro. Street cars filled with passengers are continually passing, and for one cent a man may ride in them and have a magnificent view of the harbor and shipping.

Beginning with the Boulevard de la Republique is the French quarter, or what might be called modern Algiers; the white colonnades containing the Mosques and Arabs are on the hill higher up. Indeed, the streets near the harbor would not be cut of place in Paris nor in any other city in France. They are smooth and paved with wood blocks. They are walled with French buildings, nearly all of which extend out over the sidewalks, so that the shoppers are protected from the fierce rays of the African sun. This is the case with the Rue Bab-Azoun, which runs just behind and parallel with the Boulevard de la Republique. It is the fashionable promenade of the business section, and from 4 to 6 o'clock every day it is filled with people buying and selling. The best shops are only along the north side of the street. They have plate-glass store windows, filled with beautiful goods, and the avenue walled in by pillars, looks like a museum.

On the Rue Bab-Azoun.

The promenades are stranger than any to be found at any national exposition.

station on earth. They comprise men and women of all classes from the islands and shores of the Mediterranean sea, as well as the oriental characters of the Desert of Sahara and the Atlas mountains. Europe is well represented. There are French officers, in their gay uniforms; jaunty French soldiers, in high red caps, blue jackets and fat zouave pants; and the color of brick dust; and French ladies, wearing the latest costumes from Paris. The French dandy is here, also the grisette.

The Mohammedan world walks along with the Christian. Veiled Mohammedan ladies who have just left the harem of some rich Arab, pass by, wearing white pantaloons, each leg of which is as big around as a flour barrel. Their pantaloons hang in folds, and I am told that it takes fourteen yards of cloth to make an ordinary pair. They are tied in at the calves or the ankles, and are sometimes loaded with shot to keep them in shape. Bare-faced Jewesses, dressed in gay colors, with bright shawls, and with thin black handkerchiefs glued to their foreheads, walk along in couples, and Kabyle women, bronze-faced and tattooed, ragged and dirty-gowned, come close behind. As the hour of 5 o'clock approaches the Rue Bab-Azoun is packed, and it then looks like a great cave, with a stream of all colors flowing through it.

The stores here are like those of Europe. The windows are well displayed and the goods are usually French. Most of the wares have price marks and as a rule they cost no more than in France. Another fine business street is the Rue d'Isly. This is the main road to Mustapha Superieur, the fashionable villa center, on the hills high above the city. It has many new buildings; the old structures have been torn down, the fortified wall which once girded Algiers has been removed and many improvements are now being made. The city is rapidly growing, and it has now, with its suburbs, about one hundred and fifty thousand people. It is down in the French quarter that the city post-office is situated. The French have given their colony the best postal facilities, and at rates much lower than we have given Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippines or even ourselves. All kinds of goods can be seen by mail at low rates, and there is an enormous mail order business with the mother country.

The telegraph and telephone lines are under the Government and the rates show the benefit of Government management.

agement. They are as low as in France and less than half of our charges either at home or in our colonies. One can telegraph between any two cities of Algeria, which is a country more than five times as large as the State of Indiana, for one cent a word, the minimum telegram costing ten cents. He can send a telegram to any part of France from any part of Algeria at the same rate. Cables to Great Britain and Germany cost only five cents a word; to Italy, Austria, Spain, Portugal, Switzerland and Belgium only six cents, and to Gibraltar but seven. These are rates for from any part of Algeria to any part of the countries mentioned. They are, I venture, about the lowest telegraph rates of the world.

As to telephones, all the chief Algerian cities have them. The rate for business houses in Algiers is $40 per year, and one can have a three-minute conversation to any part of the city, or to anywhere fifteen miles outside it, for three cents. And all this is in this black, far-behind-the-times continent of Africa.

libraries and schools. It has a city theater, which is subsidized by the Government to the extent of $100,000 a year, a casino which is a kind of second-class vaudeville, and regular concerts by the military bands in the Place du Gouvernement and at Mustapha Superieur. It has many clubs and in the winter there are fashionable society gatherings. The Governor-General then gives balls and receptions, and the French army adds to the gaiety. Mustapha Superieur has magnificent villas with tropical gardens situated on the hills six hundred feet above the harbor, which are occupied at that time by rich Europeans, and there are also large winter hotels which are then filled with Americans and English.

Algeria has street car lines, equipped with our own Thompson-Houston electric service, which all go to the suburbs. I understand they pay dividends, although the fares are one cent and upward per trip, according to the distance. In each car there are first, second and third-class compartments, the difference of price being regulated by the part of the car in which one rides.

African France is doing much along educational lines. Algiers has a university with the departments of law, medicine, science and letters. This institution is magnificently situated on the hills overlooking the harbor. It has about 1,300 students and is patronized not only by the French but by the Arabs and Moors. There are also agricultural schools, technical schools of various kinds throughout the colony and Mohammedan high schools, where Arab pupils are prepared for the civil service. There is a normal college at Algiers, and not far from it a military school like that at West Point. All the children of French citizens, and, indeed, all children except those of the Arabs, are compelled to attend school between the ages of eight and fourteen, and there are common schools everywhere. I have found them on the edge of Morocco, far down in the Desert of Sahara, and also in Grand Kabylia, high up in the Atlas mountains. In most of the native schools both French and Arabic are taught, and in many places the little ones write texts from the Koran on their wooden slates and commit them to memory.

As to foreign and native religious houses, these are found in all of the large settlements. There are Moslem shrines and mosques everywhere. The French have a cathedral in Algiers, and the Roman Catholic Church has an archbishop. There is a Scotch Presbyterian Church in Mustapha Superieur, and there are twenty-one Protestant pastors who share in the government grants for religious support. There are a number of libraries and museums in Algiers, and the city university has one of each, and there is also a national library supported by the French.

In Old Algiers.

One might think that these modern innovations would change the character of the city, but they would throw off the customs and costumes of the Arabian Nights and adapt them to our modern world. They do not. Coming with me into the native quarter, which adjoins the French section as closely as a patch on a quilt. We climb to it by stone steps. We go up a staircase and enter another world.

Here the streets are too narrow for carriages or horse-drawn wagons. The exception of a few cross roads, the walls are so close together that I can stand in the middle and reach them on both sides. Some are so small that the fat Jewesses are squeezed as they go through. In places such as the Rue de la Casbah, or street of the Devil, the houses are built over the streets, as it were, from one level to another. It makes me think of the cave dwellers or the catacombs.

The French city was gay and noisy. This old quarter is quiet and silent. Soler-faced men in turbans and gowns and women with sheets of white linen fastened so tightly over their faces that they seem to be pasted on, go along in slippers in their voluminous breeches. The city is all up hill and the most of the streets consist of staircases which climb from level to level.

The shops are in striking contrast with those of the Rue Bab-Azoun. On each side of us are more holes in the walls, in which somber Arabs sit surrounded by goods or work away at their trades. Here is a shoemaker with four helpers in a boxlike cell not more than eight feet square; just above is a carpenter in a space hardly big enough for the bench, and farther on are men similar to him, making jewelry of horns, using their toes as we use our fingers.

How strange the crowd looks! There are bare-legged Biskris, who have come from the desert to act as porters, carrying great loads on their backs. There are Kabyles with turbans and big hats in from the farms and there are many fat Mozabites, the Jews of the Sahara, who have come here to make fortunes by trading with the Christians and Arabs. Now and then a native soldier makes his way through the crowd, and a Jewish woman, unveiled, waddles along clanking from level to level. Indeed, Algiers is the same as it has been from century to century far back into the time of the days, when these people had Christian slaves and their piratical bands were the terror of Europe. The scenes here are those of the Scriptures. We pass a man who might be an Abraham or an Isaac at every few steps, and are crowded against the wall by others who remind us of the forty thieves. The pious Mohammedan is also in evidence. Turbanned men are praying in business hours and merchants are to be seen reading their Koran in their shops between sales.

Through scenes like this we climbed up to the citadel, which was both the palace and the fortification of the day of the past. This rises high above the rest of the town, and is now occupied by French troops. There are soldiers at the gates, and we are watched by them as we pass through.

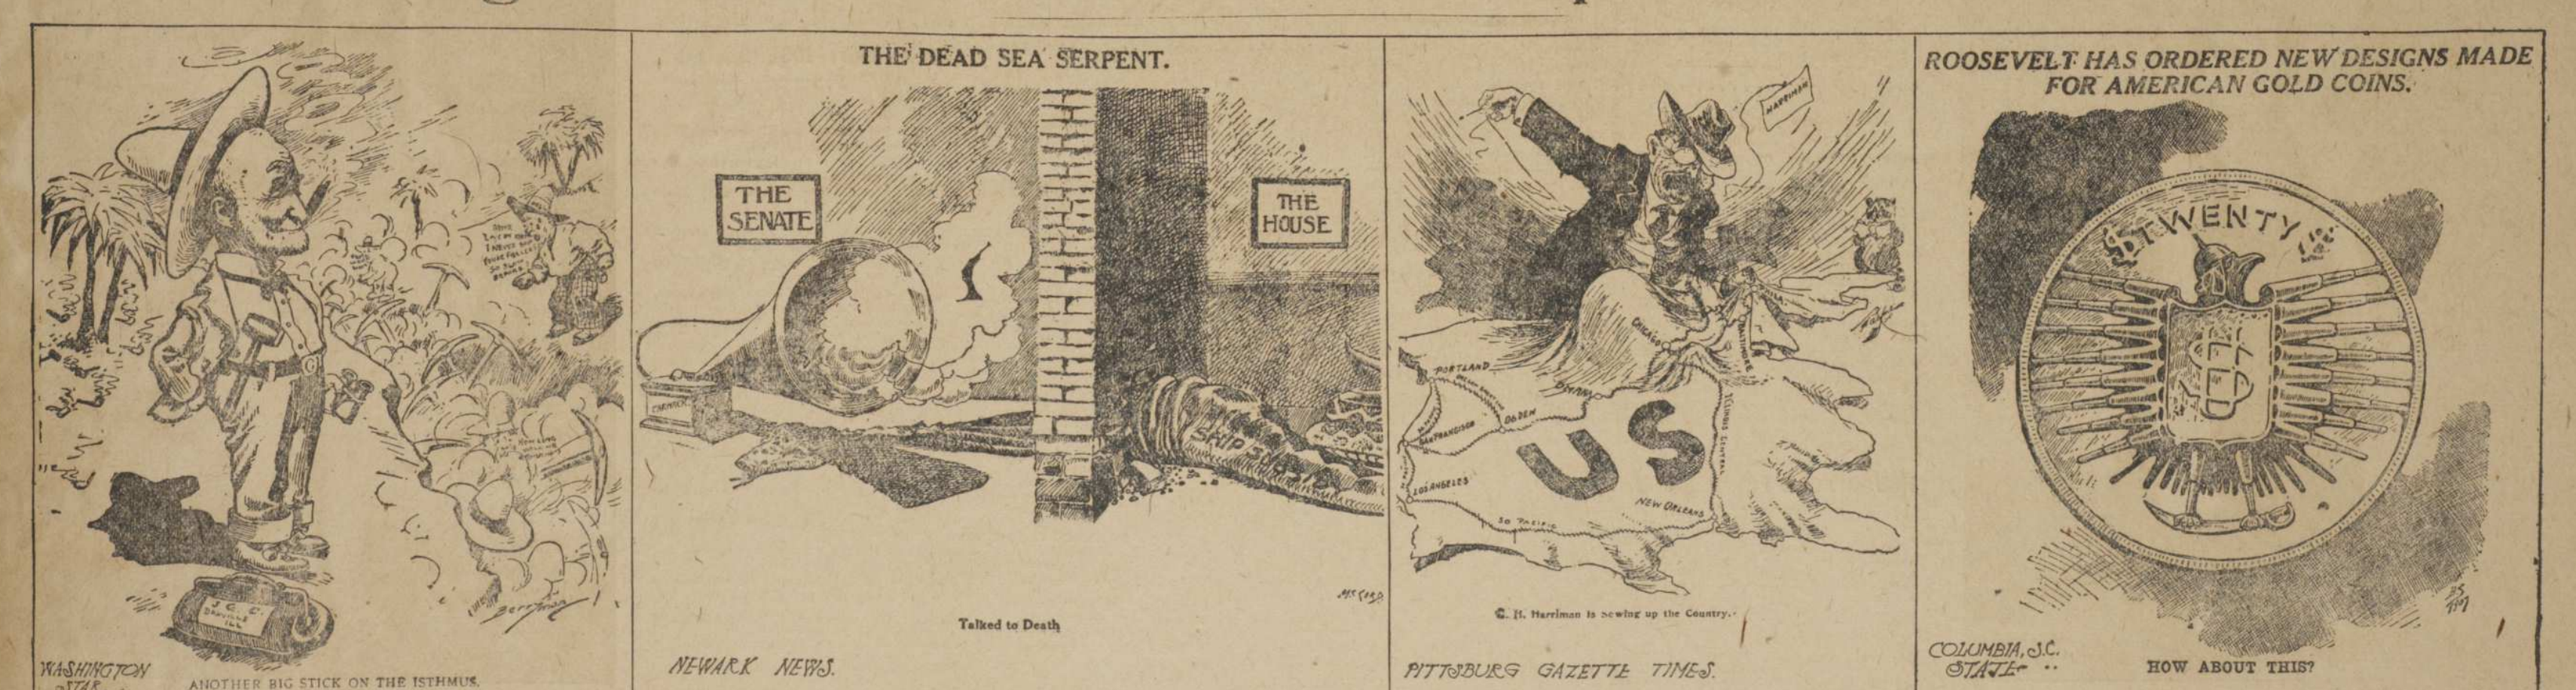

The citadel is surrounded by walls with great portholes, through which are thrust two hundred guns, commanding the city and harbor. There is one building in which the Dey devoted to his harem and in which he kept his numerous wives. Another was his mosque which has been turned into a French church; and a third is a tower which was built right over the entrance gate and contained his throne room, when the Dey held court. Outside this tower is a chain, which hangs down over the entrance gate, and it is the heads of Christians and criminals, who were beheaded, according to orders from the court above, were strung. I am told that the heads were usually shown for twenty-four hours, and were then taken down and given to the Mohammedan soldiers for food.

A Costly Blow With a Fan.

Such were the antics these Moslems were cutting before high heaven when John Quincy Adams was President of the United States. They did not "mon- key" with the Yankees, however, for Commodore Decatur had taught them better. Nevertheless, they were still building Europe and preying upon the shipping of the Mediterranean sea. They enslaved and murdered Christians, and insulted the power when they objected. One morning along late in the twenties, the Dey held an interview with the French consul, during which he was feeling especially bad. He may have been having trouble with his numerous wives; his breakfast may not have agreed with him, or he may have been dissatisfied with the number of Christian heads hung upon the chain below his judgment seat. At any rate, he grew angry during the interview and struck the French consul in the face with his fan. The blow was not heavy, but it cost him his kingdom. France immediately declared war. It conquered the army of the Dey, and since then Algeria has been a dependency of France.

House Party Etiquette For Hostess and Guest.

THE first days of spring bring most welcome invitations to city folks fortunate enough to have friends in the country or the suburbs. Informal entertaining, "come - when-you-can-spare-the-time-dear" fashion, has quite disappeared and to the comfort of hostess and servants, week-end parties are now the order. But whether the entertaining be formal or informal, whether the guests be many or few, there are certain rules which govern the action of hostess and guests, to their mutual comfort.

Invitations.

The out-of-town hostess is most specific about her invitations, and the guest must be equally specific in answering and observing instructions. The hostess writes an informal, cordial note inviting her friend or friends to come on a certain day and stay for a definite period. It may read thus:

"My Dear Miss Gray—Can you arrange to spend Sunday next with us and a few congenial friends? The Merralls girls, Harry Layton, his friend, Mr. Morgan, of Chicago, and Maurice Glover will be with us from Saturday noon until Monday morning. I would suggest that you take the 10:15 train Saturday morning, and we will meet you at the Clifton Station with a trap. There will be a tournament at the Country Club in the afternoon. Sincerely yours,

This note conveys to its recipient various facts. She is expected to remain from Saturday to Monday only, there will be six guests in all, a country club tourney, and doubtless the need of a room suitable for the tourney and for dinners. Also, the hostess indicates clearly that she should arrive on a certain train; this in order that the perhaps single carriage will be free to meet that train, when later it would be put to other uses.

The guest should either heed these suggestions or decline the invitation at once, for, in being an adaptable guest, lies the good form of house parties. In her reply, she states distinctly that she understands the hour of the train and the length of her stay. In sending out an invitation, do not say "Come to us for a few days"—and then wonder why your guest remains nearly a week; or "Stay with us as long as convenient," and then when the friend takes you at your word, complain because her presence interferes with other entertaining you had planned.

As a guest, do not imagine that when a hostess invites you to stay until Monday or Tuesday, she will extend the invitation a day or so longer. Leave on the day set unless, through some unforeseen event, your presence is particularly desirable, in which case the fact will be made quite clear to you. The hostess need not feel it necessary to urge her guest to remain beyond the time set. That is not the hallmark of hospitality and often leads to unfortunate results, if the guest takes the insincere invitation seriously.

Preparing For the Guest.

Do not invite more friends than your home will hold comfortably. Nothing makes a guest, particularly a man, more uncomfortable than realizing that he is crowding some member of the family onto a sofa or cot.

Plan your entertaining so that your guests will not be driven, but will have some time for rest in their respective rooms. A fussy hostess makes the week-end party a wearisome affair.

Prepare each guest's room with care. Have each closet and bureau drawer empty and immaculately clean. Provide ample towels, soap, etc., on a table near the bed have a lamp, or candle and matches. It is misery to hunt for a gas jet or electric light bulb in the darkness of a strange room. If your guest comes for just a week-end, have writing materials, and a few simple sewing articles in her room, as she cannot carry all such supplies in a bag or two.

If possible, meet your guest at the station, particularly if she is a young girl. If not, trust the task to your husband, a member of your family or a very competent servant. Never leave your guests to the mercy of a public conveyance.

If you cannot be at the station, you must be in the reception hall to greet your guests. You do not then take your guest into the parlor to meet other guests, but permit her to go at once to her room, sending up tea so that she may refresh herself before joining the party.

Duties of the Guest.

Even if met in the city by the hostess or the latter's husband, a woman guest pays her own railway fare, and an excellent way to solve the problem is to send to the depot or pier for your ticket in advance.

Take with you clothing suitable for every function indicated in your hostess' invitation. Never fail to have a good outdoor costume and a suitable dinner dress. Skirts and fancy blouses are not dinner frocks even in subur-

Up-To-Date Trimmings For Easter Frocks.

THE home dressmaker, whose Easter frock is just now under way, and her busy sister, who by force of circumstances and inability to fashion her own raiment must buy her Easter suit ready made, have alike made a most astonishing discovery. There is practically nothing new in spring styles!

Materials and designs are unchanged. The bolero, the eton jacket, the pony coat, all are here for the woman of modest purse, while Empire styles hold over for her who can afford a high-priced dressmaker or an imported frock. Silks are in very much the same shades, various wine colors, browns or their lighter tones, notably apricot, a lovely blue called "natural," and which can best be described as resembling the deep blue of an innocent baby's eyes; a subdued green—all reminding the shopper of last fall's colorings and far removed from our old ideas of what constitutes delicate spring shades. There are little checks and big checks, though the latter are in greater favor; there are checked and striped voiles as silky and supple as habutai silk and far more transparent, but practically nothing new—save in trimmings. In fact, the trimming selected and its method of application will stamp your new frock as of last year's vintage or this spring's.

Braids, bands, braiding and lace are handed down from winter trimmings, but in modified forms. Skirts will be much trimmed and jackets will be practically hidden under trimming, a sad outlook for the very stout woman who must study to attain straight, perpendicular lines. All trimming is applied in a distinct pattern or design.

For the tailored suit of light weight cloth, such as cheviot, unfinished worsted, chiffon broadcloth in delicate coloring, panama, etc., a trimming handed down from winter modes but with a new application is the fine braid, thickly adorning a silk instead of a velvet foundation. Very often the silk foundation and braid are of a common color relieved by a touch of gold. One striking tailored gown recently made for a young woman was of fine mixed cloth showing rather bright navy blue flecks on a delicate gray ground. The vestee, collar, pocket flaps and cuffs were of dark blue moire silk, braided with matching soutache interwoven with silver. Another gown of ivory white motiled with tea green had jacket trimmings and a deep band inset into the skirt, all of tea green silk, overlaid with narrow braid in the green, a faint blue and gold. This sort of work is difficult for the home dressmaker, but most effective. The various pieces to be braided must be stamped and then done entirely by hand.

On the other hand, many of the desirable color combinations can be secured in fancy braids or Paris bands. One block or pattern seems to overlay another in the fancy braids and the two-tone effects far surpass any plain braids. The Paris bands are of silk, braided or embroidered by machine, and show all the popular color combinations of the season. Generally they have one straight edge and one pattern edge, making them most desirable for setting off silk vests, cuffs, collars, etc. Also they reproduce most of the popular patterns in braiding such as the Greek key or Wall of Troy design, inverted "U" and deep points. A very effective silk braid shows a curved pattern with lozenges of wound silk at intervals.

On the more dressy costumes of supple cloth such as voile, coltanne or wool, the braid is used in a different way.

Ascertain the customs of the house, particularly hours of meals, and follow them.

If you are obliged to patronize the local drugist or use a long-distance telephone call during your stay, pay for these privileges.

Fail in with the plans of hostess and other guests and do not say "I would prefer to do this and so this morning."

Have your bags packed when the time of departure arrives. Do not disturb the household by demanding assistance at the last moment. If you tip any of the servants who may have performed special service for you, do this unostentatiously.

Your hostess will be in the hall to bid you goodbye, and will arrange for a conveyance to take you to the depot. You must write your bread and butter note, i. e., a brief letter stating that you reached home safely and expressing your appreciation of her entertainment within ten days.

PRUDENCE TANKER.

baists, velvet ribbon and stitched silk bands will be used with a liberal hand. A very lovely voile costume in a soft, springlike shade of green had set just above the hem a combination home-made trimming that was most effective. From a harmonious shade of green taffeta silk had been cut long, narrow lozenge-shaped pieces finished at either end with sharp points. These had been stitched firmly and smoothly around the skirt, their points barely meeting. Then the entire silk pattern had been outlined by a most dainty color combination, a fancy braid in which green, white and a mere flash of gold set off the more sombre silk most excellently.

Gauzes and laces are spangled, then trimmed with velvet ribbon and much of the heavier lace for trimming is braided or run with gold thread. Velvet and silk appliques worked in with fine silk braid show very exquisite colorings and large patterns particularly suited for outlining the hem and panels of Empire gowns.

For post-Easter party dresses there are some exquisitely beribboned and beaded laces. These are in light weight laces and tiny tape ribbon flowers are sewed on them, joined by draperies and bowknots of pale blue ribbon. Also for girlish gowns to be used in outlining applications or insets of lace there are most delicate traceries of pink rosebuds or wee flowers in pastel shades made of liberty or China silk and measuring no more than a half or three-quarters of an inch in diameter. They are set at intervals on a very narrow ribbon of matching or harmonious coloring, and at a dollar per yard upward provided a very French touch for a dancing frock of net or filmy silk. Our girlish model was of white messaline, the French Val insertion set into skirt and bodice in deep "V"s and at each point a wee rosette of edging to match with a rose in its heart. The Dutch neck and elbow sleeves were outlined with a double ruching of the lace, the ribbon trimming separating the ruching in the center. Only two yards of the trimming were required, two bolts of insertion and one of edging, yet the frock is most dainty in its suggestion of handwork.

For street costumes small metal or enamel buttons showing the same color combination employed in the dress and its trimming will be used. As a rule the spring button is much smaller than that employed on fall and winter suits. Only when there is a suggestion of the military lines in a spring coat or suit is the use of a heavy crocheted button with loops or frogs permissible. Bone buttons are used almost exclusively.

Various Ways of Stuffing Potatoes.

WHEN entertaining, particularly at luncheon or tea, the manner of serving potatoes goes far toward establishing the little "company air" which pleases the guests and thrills the hostess with pride. Here are several methods of stuffing potatoes:

Plain stuffed potatoes are made as follows: Select eight large raw potatoes of uniform size. Scrub them thoroughly, wipe them dry and place them in a roasting tin. Bake in the oven until they are nearly, about forty-five minutes. Remove from the oven, cut the potatoes in two lengthwise, then with a teaspoon scoop out the potato meat into a bowl and set aside six of the empty shells. Season the potatoes with half a teaspoonful of salt, two saltspoons of pepper, a saltspoon of grated nutmeg, half a tablespoonful of butter and four tablespoonfuls of sweet cream. Beat this thoroughly with a wooden spoon, then heap into the six half shells. Smooth the surface over with the blade of a knife, sprinkle the top with grated Parmesan cheese, set on a roasting tin, rub the tops lightly with melted butter and brown in a brisk oven for ten minutes.

A Good Way To Stuff Peppers.

OBSERVING managers of high-priced restaurants state that the average business man in ordering his luncheon almost invariably selects unusual dishes. This fact is attributed to the monotony of the fare in the average household.

Men are particularly fond of stuffed peppers, which, while they make the housewife some little trouble, furnish a pleasant variety and a nutritious dish. Allow one pepper to each member of the family, and select the large, sound green variety. Allow also one small pepper. Have ready a pot of boiling water. Cut a slice from the stem end of each pepper, remove the seeds and parboil the cases for fifteen minutes, then drain in a colander or sifter. Have ready the following mixture for stuffing. Heap two teaspoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add two finely chopped shallots and an ounce of finely chopped, cooked lean ham. An ounce of chopped ham is a scant quarter cup. Cook gently for two minutes, then sprinkle over it two teaspoonfuls of flour, stir well for half a minute, then add one small cup of seasoned and flavored soup stock. Now take the small pepper, which you do not use for a case, mince it fine and add to the mixture in the pan with eight canned mushrooms chopped fine, half a teaspoonful of fine parsley and the shredded meat of four raw sausages. Season with four saltspoons of pepper and two of grated nutmeg. Mix together and cook gently for eight minutes. Remove from the stove, beat into the mixture six tablespoonfuls of rolled bread crumbs, stir and pack into the pepper pods, heaping the stuffing in neatly. Scatter bread crumbs over the surface, pack them neatly in a baking dish. Dot the top of each pepper with butter and bake in a brisk oven for ten minutes or until a golden brown.

Stuffed white potatoes a la Suisse. These are stuffed raw, not after cooking. Select round potatoes and cut off the top of each for a lid; then, with a heavy spoon or one of the new patent potato slicers remove the center from each potato, leaving a case about half an inch in thickness. Put the potato you have removed through a meat chopper, adding at the same time one onion and such pieces of meat as may chance to be on hand—veal or chicken being particularly good for this purpose. When the meat, potato and onion have been thoroughly chopped and well mixed together season them liberally with butter, salt and pepper and, when you have filled the potatoes with this mixture, replace the lid, fastening it in position with a wooden toothpick. Bake the potatoes in a moderately hot oven until they have been thoroughly cooked and serve them very hot, being careful to remove the toothpick before bringing them to the table.

For stuffed sweet potatoes bake the potatoes, cut a slit down one side of each and scoop out the pulp. Put the pulp through a potato ricer, season it with butter, salt, pepper and a little lemon juice and fill it into the shells. Brown the tops in the oven just before serving.

These two exercises will bring into play certain muscles of the trunk which the woman who does sedentary work seldom, if ever, uses. It will also stimulate the secretion of bile which, when it clogs the system, is a common cause of yellow complexion and dull, jaundiced eyeballs.

Simple Remedies For Dyspeptic Women.

EXERCISES which will aid digestion, stimulate the circulation and open the pores will improve the complexion. In connection with the exercises, certain lotions can be applied to the skin to assist the pores in carrying off wastes and poisons.

After removing your clothing, bare your torso, sit yourself on a high stool or chair from which the back has been removed. Plant the feet far apart on the ground and with your hands on your hips twist the trunk or body as far as you can to the right slowly and firmly four times. Then twist to the left four times and alternately to the right and left. Do not rush this movement until you become breathless. Do it very slowly as if you wanted to feel it not only in the superficial muscles, but clear through the diaphragm and abdomen. Repeat the entire exercises not less than eight times, breathing deeply through the nose, not through the mouth.

Next, still seated in the chair, lean forward until your right hand presses down on the floor with the weight of your entire body bearing on the upper part of your right leg. Straighten up slowly and bend to the left, pressing the left hand, palm downward on the floor and throwing the weight of the body on the upper part of the left leg. Always inhale while bending down and exhale while straightening up. Do not work with your mouth open and your breath coming and going haphazard fashion.

These two exercises will bring into play certain muscles of the trunk which the woman who does sedentary work seldom, if ever, uses. It will also stimulate the secretion of bile which, when it clogs the system, is a common cause of yellow complexion and dull, jaundiced eyeballs.

These exercises in a sitting posture are excellent for beginners and particularly for those who are unable to stand.

First, simulate swimming, but with a regular, steady movement, accompanied by deep breathing. Stand quite erect, heels together, chest high, abdomen in and mouth closed. Raise your arms in front of you on a level with the shoulders, with the chest apart and palms turned down. Inhaling through the nose, swing your right arm back four times, keeping it on a level with the shoulder and using a deliberate, not a jerky movement. Exhale, counting four, and then swing your left hand back, inhaling as you swing. Swing the right and left hand alternately through eight counts, and then both arms back on eight counts. Do not jerk the head forward, but keep body and head in line.

Second: Take the position described at the beginning of exercise No. 1, but turn the arms in so that the palms face each other. Inhale deeply and swing forward as far as you can bend at the waist, and allow the hands to pass the legs on either side, being sure not to bend them at the elbows. Repeat this exercise at least eight times. Third: Take position No. 1, with hands straight up from the shoulder, width of chest apart and palms turned out. Inhale and swing forward slowly and steadily, bending at the waist, arms rigid in the front. At first your finger tips will be at least a foot from the ground. At the end of a week you should be able to touch the ground with your finger tips.

Fourth: To be used when you have secured a sense of balance. Stand erect, heels together, abdomen in, chest high and hands on the hips with thumbs forward and finger tips almost touching in the back. Swing the right leg up four times, until it is at right angles with the body, resting the weight on the left leg. Swing the left leg four times, and then through eight counts the right and left alternately. Do not give short, jerky kicks, but long, firm swings.

These six exercises, practiced systematically, not spasmodically, will stimulate digestion and remove one cause of a muddy complexion. Do not be over-enthusiastic at first. Start with one or two exercises repeated eight times, and add a new exercise to your repertoire each night, until you can practice ten or fifteen minutes without feeling the least fatigue.

In addition to stimulating the gastric juices and keeping the bile in motion, these exercises make for small waist measurements and better curves for the entire figure.

Follow up these exercises with the following local treatment for blackheads and pimples:

Blackhead Lotion—Boric acid, 1 dram; alcohol, 1 ounce; rosewater, 2 ounces.

Embroidery Hints For Ten Fingerers.

HAPPY the girl who did not listen to voices that whispered of the short life in store for English eyelet embroidery, but who perfected herself in this most effective branch of needlework. Instead of falling behind in the procession, the eyelet work is more popular this season than it was last, and it is appearing in fabrics of every possible weight. The bit of embroidery gives distinction to a blouse, and the rapid needlewoman can outshine her sister who can afford imported frocks if she will bend her energies at once on the embroidering of summer raiment.

The summer embroidery might be divided into two distinct classes, very fine patterns, combined with lace for lingerie blouses and frocks, and large, bold patterns heavily wrought for morning wear in tailored blouses, shirtwaist and coat suits.

In addition to being introduced in wash fabrics, the embroidered pieces for costumes appear in silk, voile and panama cloth. The new berthas, bibs and cape effects over sleeves are decorated almost entirely with embroidery. A stunning little model recently finished for a young girl was a pale blue crepe de chine with a deep bib or egg-shaped berthia over the bodice, shoulder capes and girdle of matching pale blue silk, embroidered in a fleur de lis eyelet pattern in the same tint of blue silk floss.

A little suit of natural toned pongee silk for spring wear at home showed a blouse with elbow length sleeves and Dutch neck. The sleeves were finished with turn back cuffs and the round neck with a low, shaped collar. Collar and cuffs were embroidered in eyelet work with golden brown silk, and with the gold brown messaline girdle completed the trimming of a most girlish frock.

The star or flower pattern is most effective for yokes, vests and cuffs of tailored linen suits. A bit of color may be introduced here, such as delicate blue, pink or lavender with white linen or plique, and brilliant scarlet with tan or natural-colored linen. Sometimes the embroidery introduces the color note, again, the little accessories in embroidery may be done in white floss on a delicately-colored linen or other washable fabric. A stunning blouse belonging to a suit of fine white gingham, figured with small blue stars, had a deep yoke of embroidery, showing the star pattern in white mercerized floss on a delicate blue linen. The same touch of color was introduced into the cuffs and girdle and the hat worn with this was a pale blue lingerie hat, embroidered with the white floss and trimmed on the left side with a choux of pale blue lawn to match the hat, the edges scalloped and button-holed with white floss.

Vests embroidered in eyelet work are introduced into tailored wash waists. Here the vest may be of white or a delicate contrasting color. The collar and cuffs should match. A stunning combination showed a cross-bar linen, red, on a natural tone background. The vest was of scarlet wash material which looked like a closely-woven gingham, and it was embroidered in eyelet work, the floss being natural colored. With this was worn a natty cravat of natural-toned lawn.

Very lovely are some of the fitted berthas of plain color to be worn with checked or striped materials. These are embroidered and used to outline a yoke of sheer material or lace.

Quite as important as embroidery this season is the ability to insert lace. Some of the smartest summer trimmings show lace insets, or medallions in point de Paris, German and French Val, Cluny or point de Venise, set into machine embroidery such as nainsook or Swiss.

Juice, 1 ounce; lanoline, 4 drams; oil of rose, 4 drops. Melt the oil and lanoline in a double boiler. Remove from the fire, stir in the cucumber juice. Before the mixture cools add the perfume. Beat until cool.
Cleansing Cream—Orange flower water, 4 ounces; oil of sweet almonds, 4 ounces; white wax, 2 ounces. Melt the wax and oil in a double boiler. Remove from the fire and beat in the orange flower water. Beat until cool. Cleansing cream is always applied with the fingers, rubbing the face in a circular motion and removed at once with a soft towel.

Pimple Lotion—Precipitate sulphur, 1 dram; spirits of camphor, 1 dram; glycerin, 1 dram; rosewater, 4 ounces. Cleanse the face with the cleansing cream, remove at once with a soft towel, then rub in the hot water and apply the blackhead lotion. If there are pimples and no blackheads, apply the pimple lotion. In the morning bathe in hot and cold water alternately several times. Into the last cold water put a few drops of benzoin.

Once a week steam the face over a basin of boiling water, covering the head with a towel. Partially dry the face and with an instrument that comes for the purpose press out the blackheads, and if the pimples have formed a yellow head, contents of these also may be expelled with the instrument. Massage for ten minutes with the massage cream for pimples. Remove all the cream from the face and bathe with toilet water.

J. C. W., Louisville.—Your letter could not be answered in the next number of this paper. The best remedy for removing hair from the face and arms is this: Get a five-cent cake of ordinary pumice stone, not pumice soap but stone. Rub the skin covered with the hair as you would sit down and massage your face or polish your nails, deliberately and quietly. Do this every night before retiring for several weeks and gradually the hair will disappear without injuring the skin, as a paste would. If the pumice stone makes the skin red, after each treatment rub the arms with cold cream made from almond oil, not lanoline.

STILL HUNTING WITNESSES

Defense Makes Application For More Subpoenas.

Thaw Trial Enters Ninth Week On Monday.

Mr. Jerome About Ready To Rest His Case.

THAW'S CONFIDENCE GROWING

New York, March 16.—Attorney Delmas, who has been in the defense of Harry K. Thaw today, mapping out plans for the rebuttal work at the trial which, when resumed on Monday, will be entering its ninth week. Applications were made today to the District Attorney's office for several additional subpoenas for the defense, but just who they were for could not be learned. From the plans laid today it seems that the better part of next week will be consumed by the defense and that the case may not go to the jury until some time during the week beginning Monday, the 25th inst.

Jerome's Last Evidence.

When court convenes on Monday Mr. Jerome will present the last bit of evidence he has for the prosecution. He will renew his request of late Friday afternoon that Justice Fitzgerald admit in evidence the photographic and carbon copies of the affidavit Evelyn Nesbit is said to have made in Abraham Hummel's office. This affidavit, Mr. Jerome contends, is competent evidence to contradict the statement that Mrs. Thaw was drugged and betrayed by Stanford White. In it the young woman is said to have sworn that the stories concerning White were untrue and that Harry Thaw beat her when she told him there was no truth in the statement that White had betrayed her.

Justice Fitzgerald having permitted Hummel and his clerk to testify as to the making of the affidavit, evidently intends to allow Mr. Jerome to put the papers in evidence, and read whatever of the contents he desires to the jury. Attorney Delmas said yesterday afternoon that the defense probably would have no objection to the affidavit going in evidence. He referred to the "questionable state" in which this evidence comes, and apparently will content himself with the attack he made on the credibility of Hummel as a witness. Mr. Delmas will probably have young Mrs. Thaw take the stand and repeat that she did not know the contents of the paper that will be produced against her. It will then be for the jury to decide between the prisoner's wife and the convicted lawyer.

Thaw In Good Spirits.

Harry Thaw's confidence, instead of diminishing with the closing hours of the State evidence, seems to improve daily. His wife and the Countess of Yarmouth, his sister, called on him in the Tombs and reported that he was in high spirits. When the matter of the affidavit is settled, Mr. Jerome will rest his case and Mr. Delmas will then take up the work of rebuttal. As he intends to call several alibis and as District Attorney Jerome has committed himself to extensive cross-examinations of this class of witnesses, there is no way to tell just how long a time the defense will require in putting its last evidence before the twelve men who are to decide Thaw's fate.

Prepared To Resist Efforts To Punish Them For Contempt.

Nashville, Tenn., March 16.—[Special.]—The Nashville City Councilmen, who have been voted by the House of Representatives to have been in contempt of the House in adopting a resolution relative to Speaker John T. Cunningham, will stand pat. An informal meeting of twenty-one of the twenty-five Councilmen was held this morning. Mayor T. O. Morris presiding. The resolutions were read, and the action recommended by a vote of 19 to 2. Councilman Longham, who had been made chairman of a committee to bring about a reconcilable adjustment between the Council and the Speaker, voted no because of his position. Councilman Cox declared he would vote no unless the offending resolution was modified by the substitution of falsehood for fact. The Mayor announced his unalterable purpose to stand by the Councilmen to fall.

The warrants summoning the Councilmen to the bar of the House Monday afternoon have not yet been prepared, and will not be served by the sergeant-at-arms till Monday morning.

Chicago, March 16.—Mrs. Catherine Vaughn McCulloch, Chicago's well-known woman lawyer and leader of the Western Suffragists, has come out as a candidate for Justice of the Peace in Evanston. "The cause of my coming out as a candidate," said Mrs. McCulloch, "was the simple fact that there was no woman on the bench in Evanston. I felt it was a duty I owed to the community, and when I saw the situation I decided to step into the breach. 'No, I have no platform. I will expect my woman friends to do what they can in the way of influencing their husbands to vote the right way.' Her only contestant is a plumber.

A number of ice manufacturers were present at the meeting and said that they were aware of the fact that it was due to a leakage in the pipes.

BURGLARS ENTER HOUSE IN ABSENCE OF FAMILY.

Thieves entered the residence of Mrs. A. G. Krim, at 442 East Jefferson street, Friday afternoon, and made away with jewelry valued at several hundred dollars. Entrance was gained during the absence of the family and by means of a skeleton key. It is believed, since no doors or windows had been picked open. Every room in the house was ransacked, but nothing but jewelry was taken. When the thieves left they locked the door behind them. The matter was reported to the police, who are making every effort to gain a clue to the identity of the thieves. Among the articles stolen were six set rings, a watch box, studded with eight small diamonds, one pair of diamond earrings, one string of pearls, one gold necklace, two gold hand rings and several articles of silverware.

ABOVE HIGHEST MARK Reached a Few Weeks Ago On the White River.

Bedford, Ind., March 16.—[Special.]—White river, four feet below the record mark of the flood of 1897, and two feet above the highest mark reached a few weeks ago, was still rising at the rate of half an inch an hour this afternoon. It will come to a standstill tonight. While the headwater of the creek is subsiding, the river is backing up. The water is running over the cause that were run on the east and B. bridge at Dark Hollow to hold it down. There is three feet of water over the Salt creek bridge on the Fayetteville road, and two feet on the bridge, between Bedford and Oolitic. The Monon has a crane and special train hauling gravel to strengthen the fill south of town, which the rains of Wednesday night caused to give way to some extent. This fill was almost washed out in the flood of 1897. Thousands of cords of wood are going down stream, washed out of the lowlands.

MAIL SERVICE

In Southern Cities To Be Improved At Once.

COMPLAINT MADE BY NEW ORLEANS MERCHANTS.

100 MANY TRAINS ENTER CITY HOURS LATE.

PENALTIES ON RAILROADS.

Washington, March 16.—Material improvement in the railway mail service for New Orleans and, incidentally, for other cities of the South and Southwest, is projected by the Post-office Department. Serious complaint has reached the department from business men in New Orleans, both of the delay in the arrival of mail trains and in the handling of the mails after their arrival in the city.

Voicing this complaint, Representative Meyer, of Louisiana, in a letter to the department, said that "sixteen out of the twenty-four trains entering New Orleans daily arrived late on an average of more than an hour, and in some cases nearly an entire day, which has brought about a complete demoralization of the mails, subjecting every interest in New Orleans to heavy loss."

Postmaster General Meyer said today the department had made a thorough investigation of the situation, and as a result it was found to be advisable to establish a new railway mail division at New Orleans, but a recommendation has been submitted that an enlarged supervisory force in the railway mail service be employed at that point. A great improvement already has been made in the mail facilities of the city, he stated, by additional railway post-office services on a number of trains and additional services are in contemplation. Action also is about to be taken that will facilitate the distribution of mail in the city of New Orleans. The failure of trains to run on schedule time cannot be controlled by the department. It is believed, however, that the imposing of penalties will have the effect of improving the service.

A Remarkable Stove Offer

MARCH 18

We Place On Sale Our Entire Line

BUCK'S STOVES AND RANGES

$1 DOWN $1 PER WEEK

THE REASON WHY—In order to secure a price that we can afford to sell Buck's stoves in 1907 for the same price we sold them in 1906 we were compelled to contract with them to use a very large quantity during 1907, and we must fulfill this contract. Therefore, in order to carry out our contract we have decided to offer our patrons and the public at large a special inducement in the way of a great sale, which will begin Monday morning and continue a few days only.

This sale will include our entire and complete line of these famous ranges, which will be offered to you at especially low terms of $1.00 DOWN and $1.00 PER WEEK UNTIL BALANCE IS PAID. If not convenient to pay $1.00 CASH we will allow you a liberal credit of from $3.50 to $5.00 for your old stove as first payment.

REMEMBER—This sale will continue only until we have sold a certain quantity, and upon a payment of $1.00 or your old stove we will set up in your home your choice of any Buck Stove or Range in our store, and you will have the use of the stove while you are paying the balance.

$1.00 DOWN IS ALL YOU PAY AND YOU GET THE STOVE RIGHT AWAY

This white enameled oven means clean, sweet, wholesome food

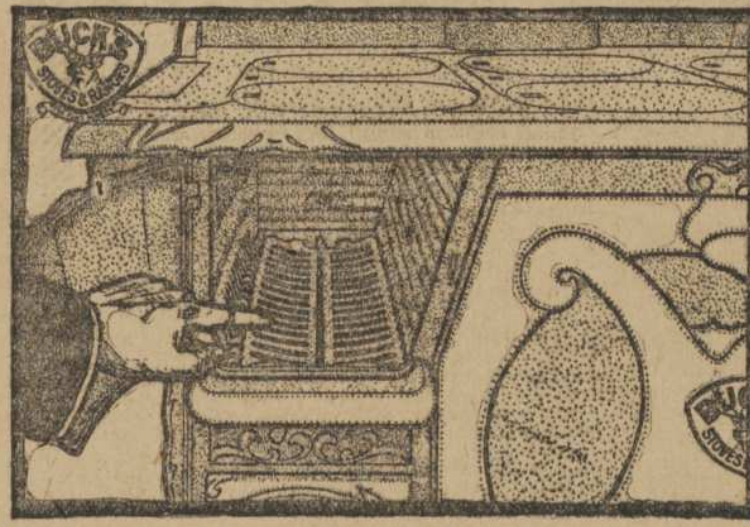

If cleanliness is next to godliness—some housewives are a long way away from heaven.

Why take great care in the preparation of an angel food cake, for instance—then bake it in an oven, the seams and joints of which are filled with contaminating filth?

A sanitary oven is even a greater necessity than a sanitary refrigerator—for during the process of baking, chemical changes render contamination doubly easy.

"White enamel is the flag that serves to distinguish Buck's stoves and ranges"—it is not a paint—but a white glass enamel—burned into the pores of the iron—and is practically everlasting.

Buck's ovens are absolutely clean—a reason why you should own one. Our terms and our prices are especially advantageous just now. Let us tell you about them. Come in when going by.

These concave grates mean a saving of dollars to you

This is the "business end" of a Buck's steel range.

The amount of heat to be gotten from a shovelful of coal depends upon how thoroughly it burns—how complete the combustion is. The thoroughness of the combustion depends upon the amount and distribution of the air admitted at the bottom of the burning fuel.

Buck's concave grates admit a larger amount of air—and evenly distribute it over the increased burning surface of the fuel.

And in order that the combustion may be even more thorough, heated air is drawn through the ducts in the fire-back—and ends—thus making the fire-box practically a hot blast construction.

For these reasons—and others—Buck's ranges burn all the coal—and reduce fuel bills to a minimum.

For these reasons—and others—you should have one of these splendid ranges in your kitchen.

Our inducements are especially attractive—just now. Let us tell you about them. Come in when going by.

This extra long draft assures a quick, even fire

What is more aggravating to the hurried housewife—than to have to wait for a slow fire? Surely nothing—unless it is a fire which heats but one part of the stove-top.

Buck's drop draft—with extra long fingered grate—admits air the entire length of the fire-box—and under the burning fuel—thus giving a forced draft and making a quick fire—which will heat the entire stove-top.

As this draft insures an even fire the length of the fire-box, so it insures complete combustion of fuel—which means a saving to you.

Let us tell you of the many other advantages of Buck's stoves and ranges—and of our attractive term and price offerings. Come when going by.

Remember, we allow you $3.50 to $5.00 for your old stove as first payment.

BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF EXHIBIT SECTION AT GREATER LOUISVILLE EXPOSITION.

READY NOW FOR ITS UNVEILINGGreater Louisville Exposition
a Thing Completed.President To Start Machinery and Open Great Show.Last Licks Put On By Exhibitors To-day.

MANY WONDERS TO UNFOLD.

When the flash of the telegraph wire flashed at 12:30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon that President Roosevelt has touched the button which is to put the wheels of the Greater Louisville Exposition in motion everything will be in readiness and one of the most magnificent displays of products manufactured in this city ever gathered together in the history of any local exposition in the United States will be seen. The big Jefferson county armory, which is 175 feet long and 135 feet wide, presented a scene last night that simply amazed the most sanguine of the several hundred citizens who were admitted to take a peep before the opening.

"I never dreamed that the exhibition was of such magnitude," was the exclamation on all sides. Some of the displays were not completed last night, but the finishing touches will be placed on them to-day and to-morrow morning. The scene last night was one of hustle and work on all sides. Not only the managers of the exposition were busy with an army of clerks making final arrangements for the opening, but the many exhibitors were also busy as they could be. The immense hall resembled a huge beehive.

President A. T. Macdonald said last night that he was confident that everything would be completed by the opening hour to-morrow afternoon. He spent several hours visiting and making a personal examination of every exhibit in the Exposition. He said that he was more than pleased with the outlook, and that he felt that the show would surprise most of the visitors. He said that he did not fear in the least that the attendance would be anything but what is desired and expected by the promoters of the affair.

Doors Open At 1 O'clock.

The doors of the big Armory at Sixth and Walnut streets will be thrown open to the public promptly at 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. The formal opening exercises of the Exposition will be brief but impressive. The managers assert that the displays will speak for themselves without any eulogies in the way of words. At 2 o'clock A. T. Macdonald, president of the Greater Louisville Exposition, will call the assembly together from the band stand on the west side of the Armory. He will make a brief speech in explanation of what the convention means to convey in the way of a show of products.

Fred Levy, president of the Louisville Commercial Club and vice president of the exposition, will follow President Macdonald in a short address. Paul C. Barth, Mayor of Louisville, will then be introduced and will welcome the visitors to the city and at the same time extending a hearty invitation for everybody to enjoy themselves while here. Gov. J. C. W. Beckham will also make an address. The principal address of the opening exercises will be made by W. Rogers Clay, of Lexington. Mr. Clay is recognized as one of the ablest speakers in the South and his address will be a treat to those who attend the opening of the exposition.

President To Release Machinery.

Promptly at 2:30 o'clock, or 3:30 Washington time, President Roosevelt is expected to touch the button that will set the big show in motion. Immediately following this he will send a congratulatory telegram to the managers of the exposition. Satisfactory replies were received yesterday from a telegram sent to John W. Yerkes, asking that he make arrangements with the President for setting the exposition in motion. The telegram sent Mr. Yerkes follows:

John W. Yerkes, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C.: You will want the President to press button putting machinery of Greater Louisville Exposition in motion at 1:30 o'clock p. m. Monday, March 18. Western Union has arranged for open wire. Please arrange all details with Mr. Loeb and wire us. Of course, the President will send us a message in addition to be read to the crowd assembled. Many thanks for great interest.

Wire Pulling Gets Wire.

Charles Smith, manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company in Louisville, was advised last night from Washington that all arrangements for the President to set the Louisville Exposition in motion had been made in that city, and that promptly at 2:30 o'clock in that city the button would be touched that would take a great burden from the shoulders of the promoters of the Exposition. Manager Smith called at the armory last night and gave Secretary Hughes the following telegram:

Washington, March 16, 1907.—Charles Smith, Manager, Louisville, Ky.: Letter to Sup. Terhune and telegram of last evening both received, and arrangement direct to White House over existing cable. The President is expected to touch button that will set the exposition in motion at 1:30 p. m. Washington time, Monday, March 18. J. A. T. F. Manager.

All Whistles To Sound.

The moment the flash comes from the touch of the electric button in Washington by the President the big double-steam whistle on the Jefferson county hall will peal forth, and all manufacturing plants and locomotive engines throughout the city are expected to respond to the force of the order to announce that the exposition is on. Arrangements have already been made with managers of many of the plants, and all others are expected to follow suit as announced through the newspapers.

The displays as made by the manufacturers of the city are all representative, and many of them show the actual process of how products are turned out in the factory. The Manual Training High School students have a most excellent exhibit of what they have turned out. The Louisville Free Kindergarten school also has an interesting display. One of the most attractive displays in the building is that of the Louisville Industrial School.

Come of the Contributors.

The agricultural display as made by the farmers of the county is one of merit and interest. The committee on this display is greatly thankful to the farmers who contributed grain, vegetables and other wares necessary to make the display what it is. Among those who contributed products for the display are: Henry Debel, Kentucky road; J. J. Ellwanger, St. Matthews; T. C. Tyler, Harrods Creek; Charles Nachand, Lyndon; John Latham, Jr., St. Matthews; William Rothenberger, Lakeland; J. T. Herr, St. Matthews; C. Marshall, Jefferson county; J. C. Lentz, St. Matthews; Denunzio Fruit Company, Louisville; George Hartman and Brother, Shady Lane; Ben Stickler, Shively.

To-day That of Last Licks.

Secretary Hughes with a large force of stenographers and clerks will be busy most of the day in his office at the Armory getting everything in shape for the formal opening of the exposition. Of course, the exhibitors will also be busy putting the last licks on their displays. The public will not be admitted to-day to the Armory under any circumstances. In fact persons will not be admitted to the building until the late afternoon and evening. Chairs for 600 persons have been arranged in the rear of the Armory and a stage erected for the performance of the band. The building is raised at 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

The opening exercises to-morrow will be made more enjoyable by the music of Creators' band. The moment the flash comes from the press of the button by the President the famous band will start up "Columbia," a composition of Creators himself. Two concert bands will be given by this famous band, which will be a great feature in the way of breaking the monotony of continuous sight-seeing. Another feature added to the exposition is a vaudeville, which will be given in the afternoon and evening. Chairs for 600 persons have been arranged in the rear of the Armory and a stage erected for the performance of the band. The building is raised at 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

Distinguished Guests Expected.

It is expected that all the city officials and a number of the State officials will attend the opening exercises of the exposition. Invitations have been sent to prominent men all over the South to attend the exposition. Some favorable replies have been received from persons

UNCLE JOE

Will Be the Candidate From Illinois.GOV. DENEEN PICKS SPEAKER
FOR THE PRESIDENCY.PLAYING POKER IN WALL STREET, HEYBURN SAYS.

NAVAL DISPLAY AT EVANSVILLE

Washington, March 16.—[Special.]—

Illinois will have a candidate next year for the Republican nomination for President of the United States, and that candidate will be none other than "Uncle Joe" Cannon, emphatically declared Gov. Charles S. Deneen, of Illinois, to-night.

The Governor came to Washington to talk with the President regarding railroad matters, and will leave for home to-morrow. He was unwilling to discuss the subject of his interview at the White House, but was quite willing to let it be known where his State stands in a political way.

The speaker of the House is the candidate of the Republicans of Illinois," he continued, "and his name will be presented in the convention."

"It's nothing but a private game of poker in Wall street," said Senator Heyburn, of Idaho, this morning while discussing the stock market situation. The Senator had just come from the President's office, but that can hardly be taken as a sign that the words quoted constituted an echo from the Executive.

The prosperity of the country is not affected in the least by all these Wall-street pyrotechnics," continued the Senator, "and the people at large care very little what happens in Wall street. Time was, and perhaps not so many years ago, when the fluctuations of the Wall-street blackboard had a very intimate connection with the state of business throughout the United States. There is so much money in the country and so much general prosperity that no one cares what happens on the financial street."

For the first time, a warship, flying the colors of the United States, will sail up the Ohio river to Evansville, Ind., Senator Heyburn called upon the President to-day and secured his promise for the great naval demonstration. The ship selected is the Wasp, which is now at Cairo.

The people of Indiana have never seen a warship and asked her to call at Evansville. "They are anxious also to prove to the world that a battleship can sail up the Ohio at least as far as Evansville."

"But the Wasp is not a battleship," said the Senator, "but no one can deny that it is a warship."

Rural route No. 5 was to-day ordered established May 1 at Bardwell, Curdsville, and 300 persons and eighty-four families.

Two Quarts a Day

CONSUMED BY JURY WHICH
CONVICTED DR. FEIST.Excessive Use of Whisky Ground
Given For Asking For New Trial.

Nashville, Tenn., March 16.—[Special.]—The motion for a new trial for Dr. J. Herman Feist, recently convicted of the murder of Mrs. Rosa Mangrum, was taken up this morning in the Criminal Court. The defense offered considerable testimony to show that the jury during the hearing had used whisky rather freely, the quantity sometimes reaching two quarts a day.

Probably the most interesting affidavit was that of Mrs. George Passe, formerly telephone operator at the Maxwell House. Her testimony was relative to "Dr. Feist," a name which she did not use a word, a man giving that name having ordered a buggy from a local stable on the night of Mrs. Mangrum's disappearance, keeping it out all night. One of the State's witnesses, the liverman, had identified Dr. Feist as the man to whom he had delivered the buggy.

Mrs. Passe testified that in December, 1905, a person came to call a livery stable. The man said his name was Dr. Feist. He wore nose glasses, black crushed hat, long overcoat, brown mustache, had brown eyes, weighed 180 pounds or thereabouts.

Affiant recalled the telephone incident when she read the evidence in the first case. Mrs. Passe said she went to the jail to see Dr. Feist, with his lawyers, and looked at him. The Dr. Feist who telephoned was a larger man than Dr. Feist and older. His eyes were different. Affiant had no hesitancy in stating that Dr. Feist was not Dr. Feist. The affidavit of ex-Gov. McMillin was read, giving Mrs. Passe a good character. The hearing went over to Monday afternoon.

UNCONSCIOUS IN HOTEL;
MAN TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

J. M. Rodman, an insurance man, who was found unconscious in his room yesterday afternoon. He was removed to the City Hospital, where he is in a critical condition. He is believed to be suffering from cerebral hemorrhage, though the attending physician has not yet succeeded in making an authoritative diagnosis of his case. At a late hour last night he was still unconscious.

Rodman comes from Cincinnati and has been in Louisville only four days. Shortly after his arrival in this city he began to complain of feeling ill, and Friday afternoon took to his bed. Yesterday morning his brother, who is a resident of Louisville, came to see him, and, finding him ill, sent for a physician. When the physician arrived yesterday afternoon and went to Rodman's room in order to attend him he found his patient lying in bed unconscious. He was removed to the City Hospital.

Don't Miss That Paper

Or the Sunday Courier-Journal of succeeding issues if you want to see the Kentucky beauties.

The assertion has been made that the most beautiful woman in the United States lives in Chicago. The Courier-Journal has printed the picture of this young woman. There is no fault to find with her looks, but we believe there are dozens—yes, hundreds—of women just as beautiful right here in our own Bluegrass State. The Courier-Journal proposes to prove this by printing pictures of the beautiful women it can secure, and then will leave the selection of the most beautiful of all to a competent Jury of Awards.

OUR READERS MUST HELP US

Secure these pictures. Send your own picture—do not let false modesty deter you. If you will not do this, send us the picture of a friend, or friends. Every man and woman in Kentucky knows one or more handsome women, whose picture will be an honor to this contest. Send it in at once, as the competition must close in a short time now.

This contest has really assumed national proportions. Newspapers in Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio, Virginia, Missouri, District of Columbia, Massachusetts, Iowa, Colorado, Nebraska, California, Rhode Island, Michigan and Minnesota have taken up the challenge, and in each State contests will be conducted.

We want photographs of the beauties of the Home and Fireside—the women of the Four Hundred Thousand, as well as of the Four Hundred. The Chicago Beauty was a clerk working for $12 a week. Actresses and professional models are excluded from this contest. The Courier-Journal believes that the most beautiful woman in the whole United States

IT NEVER VARIES

As to perfect quality and mellow flavor—referring to Old Breakinridge Whisky and brandy—made by our own Distilleries, Nos. 761 and 49, Second District, Addison, Ky. It does vary in price, because the older it is the longer we have had our capital locked up. The more it has evaporated the better it is, and, therefore, we must ask more for it. But you'll always get "good stuff" here for your money. A little Pure Whisky is good at any time. Not a saloon. Good delivered to any part of the city. Mail orders prompt attention.

REPORTING DAY
NOW AT HAND
FOR THE DERBY

Louisville Players To Be Here To-morrow For Exhibition Games.

KENNA AND JOE SIGN. ROUND UP OF BEST HORSES.

Moskman, Stovall, Peitz, Puttmann and Woodruff Have Not Affixed Names To Contracts.

BOSTONS HERE ON MARCH 23.

EDWARD KENNA, the star pitcher of the Louisville Baseball Club, signed a contract yesterday, which insures that this popular twister will officiate at the club for the Colonels during the coming season. Kenna has been taking light work for some time, and two weeks' practice should put him in fine condition.

Vice President Chivington yesterday also received the signed contract of Joe B. Stanley, the American League outfielder, secured from the Washington club by purchase. Stanley wrote that he was in good shape, and would be here next Wednesday, prepared to do his best in the exhibition games.

Mr. Chivington is very enthusiastic over Stanley. He says that it reports indicate that he will prove a star outfielder in the American Association, because he is a hard worker and has undoubted ability. Chivington has been talking to a number of men who have seen Stanley play in both the Southern and American Leagues, and all of them say he is a star.

When asked yesterday how many men had signed a Louisville contract, Vice President Chivington stated that only five were without the fold. These include the two California pitchers, Moskman and Stovall, and the three Cincinnati players, Catcher Peitz, Pitcher Puttmann and Infielder Woodruff. Mr. Chivington admitted that he had not received contracts from any of the other Colonels, but he stated that they would bring the contracts with them.

To-morrow is reporting day for the Louisville players at Eclipse Park, and by 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon the crack of the ash in colliding with the ball will be heard on the local diamond. The groundkeepers have been at work at the local park for several days, and the ground is in fairly good shape.

A steam roller is being used, and by the time the players arrive the ground will be as smooth as a billiard table. Mr. Chivington has also had a force of carpenters at work repairing the grand stands, and it is expected that the thing will be done looking toward the comfort of the patrons.

Only light work will be indulged in by the players and their families to-morrow. Right here for the opening exhibition game on March 23.

By the end of the week practically all the American Association teams will be at their training grounds to prepare for the opening of the championship season. If the weather continues to moderate at the rate it has been doing the past two weeks, the players will have no trouble getting in shape, and they will be in better condition to start the season than for some years past. It will not be a week until the season opens for the teams to get into proper form for the long campaign. The Association managers have been gradually getting their teams rounded out with recruits from the major leagues, and within a few weeks there will be few clubs which have not got their full quota of players.

The Milwaukee club, which has been having a hard time getting the men they wanted from the major leagues, but now they are with the Louisville club, and they will be without fear of being badly handicapped at the beginning of the race. It would be very rash at this time to try and predict what the season will be, as there have been so many changes of men that the dope may be switched entirely around. The teams which were weakest last year have been greatly strengthened, and the teams which were the best last year have been weakened. The season should be one of the best in the history of the Association.

There may be some complications from the squabble between the Western League and the Western Association over the annexing of Topeka, which belongs to the Western League, but the Western League, President O'Neill of the Western League, avers that he entered into an agreement at Buffalo with President D. M. Shively of the Western Association, and Secretary John Farrell, of the National Minors Association, to pay $3,000 for the Topeka rights.

Later President Shively claimed that he had not agreed to the annexation, but he was unable to agree to the transfer. In the meantime, President O'Neill went ahead with his plans and arranged to place both Topeka and Kansas City in the Western League. Now President Shively says he will place a club in either Kansas City, or Kansas City, Kan. If he does, the two organizations will practically have the Western League for annexing Topeka without proper authority and the association for invading the protected rights of the American Association.

Los Angeles Beats Mamie Algor a Nose in Thornton Event, With Dr. Leggo Third.

San Francisco, March 16.—After the greatest contest in the history of the event, Los Angeles gained a nose victory over Mamie Algor in the Thornton Stakes, at four miles, over a sloppy track, at Oakland to-day. Dr. Leggo, the heavily spotted favorite, was a distant third. Los Angeles, who arrived yesterday from Ascor Park, was an added starter. Bertha, who was defeated by Los Angeles in the fourth race, was also a starter. The mare took command the last mile and she was joined by Los Angeles.

The pair ran on almost even terms for a time, but in the stretch the Ascor horse drew away. Mamie Algor challenged again, but Knapp outdrew Brown a trifle at the end and secured the decision. Mamie Algor was shipped from New Orleans to run in the race. The winner's share was $3,150.

As an outcome of the Thornton Stakes resulting in such a grand contest at Oakland to-day, President Thomas H. Williams announced that the New California Jockey Club will give another four-mile race within three weeks. SATURDAYAFTERNOON LEAGUE

All Sections of the City to be Represented on Diamond by Strong Teams.

MUCH INTEREST IS SHOWN

THE Saturday Afternoon League, which was recently elected Capt. Frank Reichert to the presidency, has a man in Louisville is better acquainted with the local amateur situation. The season of 1937 under his leadership promises to be the most prosperous

In its history. The following teams have qualified, and will at the next meet announce their complete rosters:

Y. M. H. A.,	L. and N.,
Gryphon Athletic Club,	St. Paul Athletic Club,
Keszner Bros.,	Pratt Printing Co.,
Crippen-Cohen,	Bradley & Gilber-

A total of twenty teams were adopted, the first game to be played April 27, and ending the first Saturday in September. Games will also be played during the month of July and Decoration Day. The playing field of the American Athletic Association were adopted.

Committees were appointed to select grounds, and will report at the next meet. The association met at this time to elect its staff of umpires.

Those interested in the organization of the Junior City League, composed of players of eighteen years old, were present at the meeting, and requested the advice of

The interest among the semi-pros was quite as great as the interest displayed in the Louisville amateur organization. The season of Louisville will be represented by one team, which has been prepared to play Sunday baseball and provide their patrons with comfortable seats and covered grand stands.

There will be no independent organizations that will attract to the city any of the teams. The article of ball deplaved these independent organizations would be to the ball produced by any Class A team in the city. The only hope of these organizations could be to secure a baseball berth in professional baseball, were they so inclined. All of these independent organizations are making these independent organizations making it possible for them to make

As a result of the following well-known organizations, they are prepared to start the season as soon as the weather permits:

Band and fans are rejoicing over the announcement of the acquisition of Morning Star grounds by Ben Middendorf and Fred Haas. The team will be called the "Horns" in honor of the neighborhood in which the team is located. Mr. Middendorf will have charge of playing end of the game, insuring the Horns a high-class team. His novel idea of playing the game during his entire career, and it is safe to assume that his present contract will be an exception. Fred Haas will attend to the coaching. Fred has announced that at the opening of the season he will have a new line of modern stanch that will combine safety and speed for about 1,000 people in the West.

Twenty-sixth street and Broadway, where the street and Garland avenue, have many additions to their stable of players, and with a few exceptions, the players are patrons of the lower end, they are not the best of the city.

Dusty Rhodes team has gathered plentiful strength from two of the 1000 footers, and has a strong team. The football captain and captain of this team are the same, and the captain of the Rhodes team. They occupy second base, which, of course, is a big league form. On his right, the captain of the Rhodes team, M. I. team, will undertake the duty of everything that is knocked to the side.

In the Recruit line-up the bright players are the Rhodes team, who are captured a High School team, and a brilliant scorer, and the most of the team. The Rhodes team is a perfect holding point. Manager Keston, the Nibberichs, will present a high-toned team to the fans of that section, and Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio. The Klunbets and Thirteenth - street boys will be out in the line-ups and they will doubtless put on a fine show of their own. The Howard Park and Clayburg street side of New Albany and Jefferson will practically present the same line-ups. There are so many variations that it is impossible to mention them all in season.

Then, thirty- it is now- ten fifteen, when the man waiting- I guess- I'll sing-a little song."

She makes good her threat and does so. The crowd of good teachers, when that individual does come, proves to be her long-lost sweetest. "That won't no lady. That was y'all's chance to see the best of the best. You can't get a slap on the pneumatic nerve with a plain pink sporting edition, and—but what's the use?" For the purpose of all this is but to introduce the question that you have often asked yourself: "Where do they all come from?"

"That's the question," answer I. "Amateur night."

Amateur night is one evening in the month when the crowd gets out of each week or fortnight for the purpose of allowing the young ladies to demonstrate its shooting capacity. It is a chance for the young ladies, usually a watch or a certain sum of money awarded by popular acclaim; and it is a chance for the young ladies to show the marvelous capacity, a job in the line of that or some other show in the

Wholesale Dry Goods, Notions, Carpets, Millinery

Cincinnati now has the distinction of having the most beautiful Wholesale Dry Goods Rooms in the world. With the addition that Alms & Doepke have added, it makes Alms & Doepke's Wholesale nearly again as large as it was before; extending from Canal to Hunt and from Main to Sycamore streets, a distance of 400 feet, with lofty ceilings and immense light on all sides, creating the lightest, finest and most attractive Wholesale Salesrooms that can be built.

Through Alms & Doepke's Paris house and other foreign connections Alms & Doepke are at the present time prominently identified as big Importers, as well as Manufacturers and Wholesale Dealers, and occupying in every respect a higher position than ever before, if such attainment were possible.

Colossal stocks with uniform low prices (which are always lowest) and assortments that are large and comprehensive (embodying all kinds of desirable, scarce and quick-selling merchandise) makes it to the interest of all dealers in Dry Goods, Carpets, Notions and Millinery to see the immense Salesrooms, examine the styles and get prices before making any purchases, because many kinds of goods can be had here that will bring success to a business and that cannot be found elsewhere.

A LOT of people condemn the Edison Phonograph without hearing it. They think they know what a Phonograph is. They may, but they do not know what the Edison Phonograph is, because if they had heard it they would long to possess one.

Idea based upon crude and imperfect talking machines must not be applied to the Edison. The Edison Phonograph is the one that was invented by Thomas Alva Edison, and is made in the great laboratory at Orange, where Mr. Edison does his daily work. If there were anything he could do to make the Edison Phonograph better, he would do it. The fact that he is willing to let his name upon it is proof that he considers it good. If it is good enough for Mr. Edison, it ought to be good enough for you.

Why don't you hear it—there's a dealer in this town—before you make up your mind?

HUNGER COUNTRY

Is Ancient Province of Kazan.

TERIBLE SCENES IN FROST-BOUND FAMINE DISTRICT.

DISEASE FOLLOWS IN WAKE OF STORM AND LOW RATIONS.

IN DARKEST RUSSIA.

[London Tribune Dispatch from Moscow.]
I have finished, for the present, my journeying through the heart of the famine country. When I reach St. Petersburg to-morrow I shall have covered about 1,200 miles. Of this distance the 400 miles from the new to the old Capital of the Empire is a quick and comfortable passage; and the 400 miles due eastward from Moscow to the ancient city of Kazan, though very far from speedy or comfortable, judged by the standard of Western railway conditions, is still a relatively easy journey. But the tour of 300 miles through the country districts of Kazan province, which was my real objective, was quite another affair; and when to the piteous spectacle of omnipresent hunger and spreading disease are added the daily discomfort of the rough country sledge and the nightly discomfort of the village log cabin, I can hardly wonder that so little is known in the great cities of what is passing in those dark and abandoned corners of the land.

That, however, is what has given my investigation its peculiar interest, and perhaps some small value. "Go to our Eastern provinces," you will see their real hunger, you will see some sides of our Russian life which the people of the Capital do not know, and cannot understand." So Prince Orbellani, one of the leaders of the Zemstvo organization and of the Constitutional Democratic party—and at the same time, oddly enough, of fashionable society in Moscow—said to me before I left.

So, indeed, it proved. From the fact that Kazan is, after Nijni Novgorod, the most important town in Eastern Russia, a considerable commercial and agricultural center with 200,000 inhabitants, and the capital of the Tartar population of the Empire, you might suppose that its communications would be good and sufficient. You very soon find, however, that east of Moscow the Government has virtually forgotten its hypothetical duties to its people. The line of 460 miles from Moscow follows a roundabout route, which in any other country would at the worst occupy some twenty-five hours. Here, according to the time-table, it takes more than forty hours, but in practice many more. My train was ten hours late, but when I complained I was told I was a lucky man, that on the previous day the train had been twenty-six hours late, and this was by no means unusual.

That is not all. No bridge exists across the Volga except at Sibirsk, on the Siberian line. Elsewhere the train lands the passengers on the wild shore of the Volga, without shelter, to await the sledge to carry him across the ice-bound river. At some times the passage is, as the Governor told me, very risky, and as costly as the whole journey by rail from Moscow. There is a general opinion on the spot is that it may be built within twenty years. Yet Kazan itself is a beautiful city, newly rebuilt after the great fire of 1858; and seen from the top of Kraml, the old Tartar fortress, the view over the snow-covered roofs, the gilded domes of the churches, and the white minarets, with the vast white plain and the Volga in the distance, is as fine a piece of Russian winter landscape as can be found.

Across there, southward, lay my route. I have already briefly reported to you the conditions I found prevailing during my four-days' drive through the district of Sviyazsk. Thence I turned down the Volga to Tetinshy, seventy miles south of Kazan. This small town is the center of, perhaps, the worst of all the famine districts. In a journey of 300 miles I found, with the exception of a few favorably situated villages, the whole population suffering from hunger. At every point my arrival was the sign for a gathering of the peasants, who in the hope that aid had at last reached them, crowded round my sledge and begged piteously for succor. Alas! that I could bring nothing but a promise they could hardly be expected to understand that their case should be heard in a country where if there is poverty there is also wealth and where Gourkos and Lidsals are not encouraged. It is not only that the people's poor state of health is a hindrance to their famous Russian picture of an old peasant woman parting with her last cow for famine is no evil under the stars, as the villagers have sold one-half of their horses and cattle, and on which their future depends as surely as their present does on flour—and often they have sold their samovars and wretched spare clothes for bread. The lack of fuel is almost as cruel a feature of the situation as the lack of sustenance. In each village which I visited about a fifth of the families had abandoned their own houses—huts would be a better description—because they were not able to heat them. In yet larger huts, together in small and filthy hovels which must soon be, where they are not already at centers of disease. They had been driven to strip the thatch and woodwork from their homes by fear of death from the ghost of typhoid. In the villages of Tetinshy, Sviyazsk, and elsewhere, honest flour by which this lack is made good I need say nothing, for some specimens of acorn powder and other weird mixtures will already have reached you.

In such circumstances the spread of preventable disease is inevitable. I found that scurvy was beginning to ravage the villages of Tiumna, Schemakino, Tiumna, Tiumna, Bielovolka, Abasovo, Barish and Burnash. Dysentery and typhus are also becoming very common and are worst in the villages of Schemakino and Janashevo. I was informed that practically a half of the population was suffering from eye diseases directly attributable to insufficient food.

RIVER TELEGRAMS.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 16.—[Special.]—Towboat and packet-line operators are getting back into shape quickly after the flood. Outside of the loss of the towboat Cruiser, when two men were drowned, shipping interests declare that their losses are slight. There was much coal in the harbor all during the flood, but careful manipulation and strong hawsers kept the boats well fastened. More coal would be shipped, but there are no towboats available. The towboat which that are about the flood up and unable to operate against the current. It will possibly bring some time before the towboats are able to return home. Shipping interests were notified to-day that the towboat and City of Louisville requested to change the harbor line between the towboat and City of Louisville. The iron company asks that the harbor line be set at a distance of over a mile. River interests will fight the question hard will fore Lieut. Col. W. V. A SENTIMENTAL LOBSTER.

[New York Press.]
The waiter brought a live lobster on a bed of seaweed for their approval and gravely bore it to the table. The waiter had the men of a state dignitary performing some grand function. "That," said Maurice Harley, "is a big deal. They don't broil that one. He's 'n' know that," replied the Burlesque Queen. "Did you ever hear about the lobster lobster they had at the Palace?" "He was an enormous fellow, and they said he was a big fellow. When a tuxy patron came they used to fish him out, exhibit him, take him back and put him in the tank, take one out of stock and broil it." "You remember George Lindsey, the lobster?" He got to that he knew her, and when she would snap her fingers and whistle he would crawl up the side of his tank, wiggle his feelers, and fuss around like a dog, and George would feel him and stroke him and talk to him. She said he silence refreshed her after the conversation of other lobsters she knew. "This was a lot for about a year, and then George Porgie went abroad to play the London 'alls. Zachariah missed her. For quite a while he was nervous and fidgety, always starting up at the sound of people coming in as though he was listening for her step. Then he grew moody and sulky and refused to leave the room. He was lying on the bottom of his tank, thinking deeply, and he was so tired out that he would not get up to answer to customers' calls.

"At the end of another year George came back and came into the Palace one night with a party. Soon as she came in the waiter heard a great splashing in Zachariah's tank. He was perfectly wild with excitement and tried to get to the scene. "One" she said, "Zachariah George, 'Zack' and she pulled Zachariah on the back and began to talk to him and not him. This lobster wiggled all over with joy and fairly blushed scarlet, as if he had been boiled. Then suddenly he turned white, fell to the bottom of the tank gave a feeble wiggle or two, and died. The joyous shock had broken his weak heart."

"I don't want the first time George Porgie broke a lobster's heart," said Maurice.

BEAR STORY MERELY A DREAM.

Nobody But a Correspondent Saw Bruin At Afton.

[Afton, Va., Times-Dispatch.]
The story published several weeks ago of a woman near Afton having given her infant into the clutches of a huge bear, or her way to a dance, and mistaking it in the darkness for her husband, and the subsequent death of the infant, was a monster, has caused no little amusement here, and a great deal of comment by people all over this and other States, besides

As a matter of fact, there have been no bears seen within a radius of many miles of Afton for many years. A number of the older residents of this place remember a "bear" story similar to this, told some twenty-odd years ago, when bears were more numerous in the mountains in this section. It was related by an old hunter while on a big bear hunt. The same story has been published every year for the past six years.

PROPER FOR HIM
"You announced the text of your sermon," said the cranky old deacon, "as 'Let not your right hand know what your left hand doeth.'"

"Well," replied the new minister. "I should have been, 'Let not your right hand know what your left hand know what your right hand doeth.'"

"But I'm left-handed!"—[The Catholic Standard and Times.
